ALICE WALSH OF BOSTON, WHO WAS STABBED BY SHEA

BURGLAR IN GIRL'S TRAP SHOT DEAD

HYDE PARK, Vt., May 22.—Trapped by Miss Hattie Foss, the twenty-year-old daughter of the proprietor of the store he was robbing, an unidentified man was shot and killed here early to-day by a posse of young men.

The burglar went to his death refusing to give his name or those of his relatives. It is believed that he came from a prominent family.

Miss Foss came across the burglar as he was pilfering her father's cash drawer. Without an outcry the plucky young girl, who had just returned from a dance with an escort, sent her companion for assistance.

The burglar, leaving the store by a window, found himself caught in a cordon of armed men. He made a motion as if to draw a gun, and as he did one of the men, Archie Billings, fired. The burglar fell, fatally wounded.

He was carried into Mr. Foss's house, and two doctors were summoned.

It was found that the bullet had passed through his abdomen, and that nothing could be done to save his life. He was asked to give his name or those of his relatives and friends, but he stoutly refused, although his critical condition was impressed upon him. He died at 4 a. m.

The contents of the cash drawer and several other articles as well as bruglar's tools were found in hi psockets.

State Attorney Morris of this district investigated the case, but accepted young Billings's version of the shooting, and made no effort to take the young man into custody.

POLICE IN RIOT CALL TO BROKERS

A squad of police from the Court Square police station were rushed to the banking district to-day in response to a riot call sent in by an excited creditor of the banking firm of V. S. Heyman & Co., of No. 53 Devonshire street, who this noon suspended payment on their liabilities.

The firm claims to be solvent. At their office they claimed to have been effected by three recent failures, one of which was the collapse of the firm of L. Auerbach & Company. When the office opened today fifteen of the creditors gathered in the office. One of them became excited at the number and rushed to the nearest telephone and sent in a riot call for the police.

Employees of the Heyman company claim that their liabilities amount to but $1,600. They also assert that they have assets amounting to $5,000 in the form of an unpaid account against the firm of L. Auerbach & Company. They claim that A. P. French, receiver for that firm, some time ago offered $2,000 in payment of the claim. Recently, they say, learning that the firm was in financial difficulties, he reduced the offer to $1,000.

In the statement made to the creditors to-day the firm agreed to sign over the Auerbach claim to their creditors. When this settlement is made it is proposed to sell the business to a firm to be known as Roberts & Smith.

The Heyman Company claim to be bankers and brokers and correspondents for members of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange.

LABOR LEADER FACES THE DEATH CHAIR

Former President Shea of the Teamsters Admits Stabbing Woman; Victim Dying; Wife of Prisoner Will Go to His Aid.

Under arrest in New York for stabbing Alice Walsh after a quarrel in that city last night, Cornelius P. Shea of Charlestown, ex-president of the Teamsters' International Union, to-day admitted his crime to the police.

Shea also said that he deserted his wife five years ago for Alice Walsh but had since tried in every way to get rid of her to fuly restore his home in Charlestown.

Miss Walsh's condition at St. Vincent's Hospital is critical. In the event of her death the charge against Shea will be changed from assault with a dangerous weapon to murder.

In Essex Market Police Court, New York, today, Shea was held without bail to await the outcome of the woman's injuries.

During further questioning by Inspector McCafferty at Police Headquarters in New York, the prisoner said he spent eleven months in the Concord Reformatory as a boy.

Mrs. Shea, at her home, No. 33 Tufts street, Charlestown, to-day charged Miss Walsh with having lured her husband from his home. She alleged that the Walsh woman had been trying for four years to get her husband to marry her.

"I was warned a long time ago," declared Mrs. Shea, "that my husband was under the spell of this woman. While she was living in this city she was often in the company of my husband. She also went with him on business trips to the West.

"I have the greatest sympathy for my husband. He tried to live honorably, but he could not as long as he had anything to do with that woman. Connie was never as bad as he was painted."

Alice Walsh, it was learned to-day, was in Charlestown a week ago Thursday. She stopped at a Boston hotel and visited a woman friend on Main street, Charlestown. This woman friend said to-day that Miss Walsh told her that she had quarrelled with Shea, and that he had threatened to kill her. The Walsh girl said that she was living at No. 832 Amsterdam avenue, New York city. At the time she was in this city Shea was visiting his family in Charlestown.

Mrs. Shea also declared her intention of standing by her husband and aiding him. It is possible that she will go to New York to have a conference with him.

She came to Boston two weeks ago from Indianapolis, in response to a telegram from his wife telling of the birth but a week before of a daughter. He remained here but a day and left for New York.

His wife to-day said that he sent her money while away from home, and in letters and postal cards to his children expressed his love for them. The Sheas have three children, Marguerite, aged thirteen; Genevieve, ten, and Helen, three weeks old.

SHEA DIRECTED BIG TEAMSTERS' STRIKE IN BOSTON

Cornelius P. Shea was born in Cambridge about thirty-six years ago, and he has a wife and two children. He worked for his father, who was a tipcart contractor, and in 1900 he joined Tipcart Drivers' Union No. 191 of Boston.

A year later he was made business agent of the union, and very soon after he was elected president of the newly organized Teamdrivers' Council.

In 1903 he was sent as a delegate to the national convention of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Helpers at Niagara. He made his mark at this convention by bringing the warring factions together, and was elected president of the body. He was re-elected by acclamation the next year at Cincinnati, and the next year at Philadelphia, when there was strong opposition to him, he won out.

At Chicago the next year "Al" Young and ninety delegates bolted the convention and formed a new union with Young as its president.

Shea has made his home at different times in Charlestown, Indianapolis, Chicago and New York.

On April 5, 1905, the day that Mayor Dunne was elected in Chicago, Shea arrived in that city and called the big teamsters' strike which cost the city and its merchants $15,000,000 in money and the lives of fourteen people, while 500 were severely injured in street riots.

On April 29, 1905, he was indicted by the Grand Jury for conspiracy. The indictment was quashed later, but in June he was again indicted. He was bailed after two hours in jail and began the war on the opposition in his union.

He was sued for criminal libel, and the damages resulting from his conduct were set at $25,000. When his trial came in February following Shea was found not guilty and released after the jury had been out four hours.

Headed Big Strike Here.

The trial cost Cook County close to $100,000, it was said, and some of the evidence tended to show that Shea had advised the most tyrannical methods on the part of the strikers.

It was testified that he advised the use of dynamite and powerful acids to destroy the property of the opponents of the strikers.

He led the big teamsters' strike in Boston in 1907, which was marked by violence and rioting. In August, 1907, Shea was beaten by Daniel J. Tobin by ten votes for re-election for the fifth term as general president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Helpers. President Tobin also is a Cambridge boy.

MAIL MAN KILLED.

Patrick F. Hargadon, foreman of the baggage and mail department at the South station, was almost instantly killed at the station. He was crossing the tracks to the baggage room when he was run down by the engine of an incoming train about 7:30. Hargadon lived at No. 152 F street, South Boston.

MRS. HOWE 90, IS HONORED BY WOMEN'S CLUB

Julia Ward Howe was the guest this afternoon at an informal luncheon held in her honor at the Vendome. The luncheon was given by the New England Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Howe has been the president for nearly a quarter of a century.

The hostess was Mrs. Mary Alden Ward, the first vice-president. The guests numbered 100 of the leading women of New England.

The luncheon was held in honor of Mrs. Howe's ninetieth birthday, which occurs next Thursday, May 27. The actual anniversary is to be observed very quietly and simply at her home. None but her children, relatives and most intimate friends are to share in the little gathering.

In view of the respect due to the family privacy of next Thursday's celebration, the New England Woman's Club, which has always been dear to the heart of Mrs. Howe, decided upon to-day's luncheon as the most fitting way to honor their great leader's anniversary.

In her own simple and delightful way Mrs. Howe speaks of her coming birthday.

"I am looking forward eagerly to my birthday," she says. "It means a great deal to reach the age of 90, but there is regret mixed with the joy. I am a very old lady, but I still enjoy life."

Among the women who shared in to-day's gathering at the Vendome were Mrs. Judith Smith of East Boston, Mrs. Holbrook, Mrs. Whiton Stone, and Mrs. Margaret Lothrop of Concord. Mrs. Howe was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Laura Richards.

LOST MAN'S SLAIN BODY IN MEADOW

NORTH ADAMS, May 22.—The body of Oscar Turner was found to-day in a cove on the east bank of the Hoosac River, near a meadow owned by Daniel T. Bates. He disappeared mysteriously April 17.

Since April 18 the Commonealth of Vermont has held in custody under suspicion of being connected with Turner's disappearance or death, Thomas Harris, Mrs. Harris and Frank Moon. They have been confined in Bennington Jail. Since their arrest a daily search of the river has been made for Turner's body, as nothing could be done with the suspects until the body was recovered.

The body was discovered by Selectman Arthur Merchant, Robert Potter and Fred Bump. They notified Mr. Bates, a former justice of the peace, who communicated the news to Sheriff Fred Godfrey. The body was taken into the carriage house of the Bates estate, where it will remain, awaiting the orders of State's Attorney Meagher and Justice Barber, who will hold his inquiry this evening in the town of Pownal, Vt.

On the body, especially on the head, were indications that Turner had been struck with a heavy instrument. There were marks on the top of the head, one five inches and another three inches long, from which the scalp was missing.

In Turner's pockets was found $46.40 and his Elgin gold watch and the chain, so that robbery was not the motive.

SHAW'S WIFE WILL GIVE UP SON MONDAY

Senator James F. Shaw was informed to-day by his counsel, Butler, Cox & Murchie, that on Monday he would recover his son from H. Fisher Eldredge, the Portsmouth millionaire, who is grandfather of the child.

"We have received assurances from Messrs. Bartlett & Anderson, counsel for Mr. Eldredge, that the terms of the California courts will be complied with on Monday, and the boy given into the custody of his father," was the statement made by Shaw's attorneys.

The transfer of the son to his father will be made in accordance with an agreement made between the parties before Mr. Eldredge came East with his daughter, who had eloped to California with H. Keno Marble, her chauffeur. It was agreed, however, that the boy should be given to his father yesterday, and some excitement occurred when Mrs. Shaw the boy and her father disappeared from Mr. Eldredge's Summer home in Chatham.

Case Taken to Court.

This occurred about the time that deputies sought to serve a summons on Mrs. Shaw to compel her to show cause Tuesday in Superior Court why she should not place the boy in his father's custody.

Just before the deputies arrived in Chatham with their summons, Mr. Eldredge, Mrs. Shaw and the boy got into a motor car, and, choosing the sideroads, sped away at a fast pace. The deputies reached the Eldredge home too late, and were denied admittance by the servants. They shoved their papers under a door and departed, setting up just as fast a pace as the Eldredge party had made in getting away.

Mr. Eldredge came to Boston and saw an oculist about his eyes, but the whereabouts of Mrs. Shaw and the boy were kept secret. It is supposed that they are somewhere in Boston.

Feared He'd Lose Boy.

When the transfer was not made exactly as agreed upon, Senator Shaw was led to believe that faith had been broken by his father-in-law, and the wires were kept red hot between the counsel, respectively, of Mr. Eldredge and Senator Shaw. The lawyers soon came to an agreement. It was stated that Mr. Eldredge's illness was the only cause for the delay of the transfer.

Senator Shaw's petition for divorce has been filed in Salem. This document declares that they were married at Portsmouth, N. H., June 19, 1895, and lived at Brookline and Manchester until May, 1907. Marble is named in the suit. Senator Shaw asks custody of the child pending the disposition of the suit.

It is believed that Mr. Eldredge seeks a compromise whereby his daughter will not lose entire possession of the child.

FERGUSON AND JEANETTE BOX IN PARIS CLUB

PARIS, May 22.—The biggest fistic battle that has yet taken place here is scheduled to-night, when Sandy Ferguson of Boston meets Joe Jeanette of New York in a twenty-round heavyweight bout to a decision.

Jeanette has already established his prestige by beating Sam McVey, the big American and several lesser lights of local reputation, and the colored man is well liked in the contest.

Ferguson has only been in the French capital for a short time, but his quick defeat in a round of Hall, an Englishman, two weeks ago, when he had just landed, proved to the Parisians that he is a grand fighter.

Both men are perfectly trained for the hardest kind of an engagement, after many weeks of special preparation for the important match. While the result of this heavyweight bout will not decide any championship, the winner is sure to be accorded recognition as a candidate for the title of the world.

Jeanette has supreme confidence he will win as he beat Ferguson in a twelve round in America in 1908, but the white man claims that he was not in form then, and will reverse the victory which Jeanette secured over him on this second meeting.

As in the fight with McVey, the use of oxygen by Jeanette may come into play, but only in case of necessity, as the battle is of shorter duration.

That the result will be a knockout is generally conceeded, as both men are out to win in the shortest space time possible.

TAFT OPENS LAND FOR SETTLEMENTS

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Taft to-day issued a proclamation for the opening up to settlement and entry of about 440,000 acres of land in the Flathead, Montana; 200,000 in the Coeur Alene, Idaho, and between 50,000 and 100,000 in the Spokane, Wash., reservations.

RED SOX NOW OUT FOR FIRST PLACE IN FLAG RACE

Despite cloudy and chill weather, the Red Sox and White Sox met in Chicago this afternoon in the final contest of the series.

The Boston team had a chance to land first place in the American League pennant race and were after it with all steam up.

All the National League games were postponed on account of rain. The Boston-Chicago game here was called off early, and the rain Hoodoo extending throughout the East made the other games scheduled impossible.

COLLEGE MEN PERFORM ON SLOW TRACK

TECH FIELD, Brookline, May 22.—The poor weather conditions which prevailed to-day made good performances out of the question in the New England intercollegiate track and field championships. The track was heavy and slow and the footing for the shot, hammer and discuss bad. In fact, none of the events was held under favorable conditions. But all the athletes and all the colleges suffered alike.

The poor weather hurt the attendance, so that there was only a small crowd present. The closeness and fierceness of the competition trials on Friday made the royal athletic rooter forget the meanness of the rain and cold, however, and there was some very spirited cheering.

The affair was tremendously slow on Friday. There was a lack of good officials and of accommodations. Had there been good conveniences the preliminary part of the meet would have been finished earlier. As it was it was very late and when it was over it was so cold and raw that many of the athletes were chilled.

The splendid individual performances of Horrax of Williams who qualified in every event he tried, save in hte discus throw, and of John N. Mayhew of Brown and the good work of Hawler made them the heroes. Every move of Sherman was also watched and as he competed in both the sprints and the broad jump he was almost as busy as Mayhew and Horrax.

MUSICIANS FINED $2,000 BY UNION

CHICAGO, May 22.—Walter Roehrborn and Dr. Paul A. Leischner, musicians, have been fined $1,000 each by the Chicago Federation of Musicians for attempting to enter into a contract to furnish the Shubert theatres all over the country with musicians for wages below the scale fixed by the union.

FOUR LIVES LOST AS BOAT CAPSIZES

NEW YORK, May 22.—The two-masted schooner Irena, bound from New York to Rockaway Beach, capsized off Coney Island to-day in the heavy northeast storm, and four of her crew of six are believed to have been drowned.

WHISKEY KILLS CHILDREN.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Whiskey administered for stomach ache brought death to two children on board the steamer Kaiserin Augusta Victoria which arrived here to-day from Hamburg. The victims were Herman Schmidt, aged nine, and Janis Kashibar, aged nine, whose parents were steerage passengers. They were buried at sea.

SOUTH SIDE BALL PARK, Chicago, May 22.—With the count two to one in their favor in the three games played, the boys from Boston were out to-day to take the last game of the series in a desperate effort to overtake the Detroit Tigers.

Manager Lake called upon his men to fight their hardest in an effort to go back home leading the American League race. He told them if they ever got on top during the Western tour they could increase their hold in the long series at home.

Lake had the same lineup in the field that fought the last two games. Lord's finger is still in a bad way, and it is not certain when he will be able to get into the game again.

Niles was on duty at the third station, with Gessler in right and Hooper in left field. The White Sox had White back at centre field.

Manager Sullivan had three of his pitchers ready for the game. Wolter, the left-hander secured from the California Outlaw League, was the man upon whom the Red Sox manager banked, and he looked almost a certainty. Ryan also was tipped to start, while Steele, who took the first game of the series, was held in reserve for an emergency.

CHARGE OF FORGERY HOLDS UP WEDDING

FALL RIVER, May 22.—Love's young dream was disturbed very rudely in the case of Alfred Morrisette and Emma Curtis when the police arraigned Morrissette before Judge McDonough on the charge of forging an application for a marriage license. The couple, when applying to the city clerk for a license to marry, presented what purported to be the consent of the girl's parents. The same course, it is alleged, was followed when the young folks asked a minister to marry them. Morrissette was held for the grand jury.

99-YEAR TERM FOR WOMAN AS SLAYER

MONTOMERY, Ala., May 22.—Mrs. Hattie Pope, whose case has been on trial at Clinton for the murder of her mother, Mrs. Mary King, at Montvale on March 4 last, was found guilty and given a sentence of ninety-nine years in the penitentiary.

'BAD DAYS' FOR MEN, ONCE IN THREE WEEKS

LONDON, May 22.—Dr. Herman Swoboda, a leading Viennese physician, is attracting much attention with his theory on "the critical days' of men." Dr. Swoboda says that men suffer one of these "bad days" without having committed any excess of any kind. A "bad day" comes to a man without any appreciable external cause. He may suffer from headache, pipitation of the heart, indigestion, nervous excitability or lassitude.

Strangely enough, the "bad day" recurs regularly every twenty-third or twenty-eighth day, or, if not then, at multiples of either number on every forty-sixth or sixty-ninth day or every fifty-sixth or seventy-fourth day.

Dr. Swoboda applies his theory to mental phenomena, too. He says a man's grief for a relative's death is deep felt for twenty-three days, then begins to grow less. Nearly every natural death occurs on one of these critical days, says Dr. Swoboda, when the machinery of the human body is in bad working order.

An eminent London specialist agrees in general with Dr. Swoboda.

"What should a man do when he feels he is having a 'bad day'" was asked of this Englishman.

"Go into the country," he answered. "If it is Summer, let him lie in a lonely field and think of nothing but the cows. But also he should not eat meat."

99-INCH SHEET LAW IN ILLINOIS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 22.—The ninety-nine-inch sheet bill, which has passed the House, applies to every hotel in the State of ten or more rooms, and is in line with the much discussed production of the first Oklahoma Legislature following statehood. The bill provides that hotels shall provide sheets which will be long enough to reach up and out from under the blanket and turn over the end of some; that there shall be knotted ropes tested to 500 pounds in each room where fire escapes are missing; that each guest shall have one separate and distinct towel. The big hat bill failed by thirty votes. Postponement of consideration was reserved until Tuesday, when the anti-big hat patriots are expected in force. Representative Browne referred tearfully to a theatrical visit where he couldn't see past a bunch of bonnets.

CASH FOR NEW GYM IS COMING IN FAST

Father Michael J. Doody, treasurer of St. Mary's Catholic Association of Cambridge, is highly pleased at the response to the call to rebuild the Cambridgeport "gym," which was burned May 5. The St. Alphonsus Society of Roxbury has promised to reproduce its recent minstrel show for the benefit of the fund June 4 and 5.

ROGERS' ROAD TO BE OWNED BY HARRIMAN

PITTSBURG, May 22.—That E. H. Harriman and his associates will secure control of the Virginian railroad on account of the death of H. H. Rogers, who built the line at a cost of more than $40,000,000, is reported in railroad and financial circles.

The line is to be extended to a point near Point Pleasant on the Ohio river, where direct connection is to be made with the road built by Joseph Ramsey, Jr., former president of the Wabash, giving an entirely new line from the lakes, through Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia to the seaboard.

It is known that engineers for some time past have been working on plans to connect the Ramsey road with the Virginian. When Mr. Ramsey severed his connection with the Wabash he organized a company and built the Lorain & Ashland Road from Lorain to a point near Wellington, O. He then organized a second company, which is building the Ashland & Southern Railroad from the Southern terminus of the first named road to the Ohio River. Some time ago these two companies were merged and the Ramsey holdings are now known as the Lorain, Ashland & Southern Railroad.

ARDENT GIRL MAKES MR. TAFT BLUSH

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Taft at Charlotte, N. C., had finished his speech, in which he promised the South that he would appoint to office only the best men, regardless of party, and in which he talked feelingly of a reunited country. He was at the Selwyn Hotel, backed up against a pillar, shaking hands with the multitude. Out from behind the pillar rushed a beautiful young woman, who grasped the President's hand and said fervently, "I love you!" The President blushed, but with commendable gallantry and discretion answered that he viewed with considerable gratitude the sentiment she had expressed. "Really," the beautiful young lady insisted, "I do love you. I have been in love with you ever since you made that speech."

AMBASSADOR BRYCE DEFENDS PAPERS

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., May 22.—The fifteenth annual meeting of the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration concluded its deliberations. The speakers included the Hon. James Bryce, the British Ambassador; Alfred Mosely of London, Representative Richard Bartholdt of Missouri, Edward J. Wheeler, editor of Current Literature; Frank Chapin Pray, editor of the Chautauquan, and Dr. Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century.

In his speech Mr. Bryce defended the newspapers from the charge of misrepresentation in time of dispute between two nations, and declared they reflected simply the opinions of the people.

ROGERS GAVE $4,000,000 TO EACH CHILD

NEW YORK, May 22.—Henry H. Rogers, the Standard Oil millionaire, gave away $16,000,000 in bonds, securities and cash five weeks before his sudden death.

This fact was learned to-day from a business associate of Mr. Rogers who was familiar with his private affairs. The vast sum of money, comprising almost half of his total wealth, was equally divided among his four children.

Each received $4,000,000. The money went to his daughter, Anne, now Mrs. W. E. Benjamin; his daughter, Clara, now Mrs. Urban J. Broughton and formerly Mrs. Bradford Duff; his daughter, Mae, now Mrs. W. R. Coe and the divorced wife of Joseph C. Mott, and his son, Henry H. Rogers, Jr.

Escape Inheritance Tax.

This sum will not be subject to the inheritance tax of one per cent. for direct heirs and five per cent. for collateral heirs. Whether or not Mr. Rogers had this in mind or not when he gave away these great fortunes is problematical, but this has been done frequently since the inheritance tax law became operative.

The will of Mr. Rogers, in all likelihood, will be filed for probate in New York county. His total estate comprises $45,000,000 and the bulk of it will go to his second wife and his children. There are other bequests to the town of Fairhaven, which has already received $2,500,000 from Mr. Rogers, and to collateral relatives and friends.

It was said to-day that Mr. Rogers was worth fully $60,000,000 three years ago. In Wall street it was said that he was a victim of his own business ruthlessness.

A lot of the men whom he had swept aside in his career found a chance to get even, and they showed him no mercy. When he needed money to build his Virginian tidewater railroad he had to pay seven and eight per cent. for it, and in many other ways he was made to feel the power of Wall street.

ALL FAIRHAVEN IN SILENT TRIBUTE TO DEAD MILLIONAIRE

FAIRHAVEN, May 22.—This town is in mourning to-day. The entire community suspended its activities to attend the funeral of Henry H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate. Between 10 o'clock this morning and 4 this afternoon no business was transacted in Fairhaven, no work was done. From the most eminent citizen down to the most humble child everybody joined in the public mourning.

A cold drizzling rain, swept by a stiff northeast wind, increased the sombreness of the town draped in black. But it did not interfere with the silent tribute which the people unanimously paid to the memory of Fairhaven's patron.

Over 900 school children, massed in Cushman Park, were the last to see the funeral cortege as Mr. Rogers's body was carried through the park to Riverside Cemetery after the church services. The girls were all dressed in white and the boys in black. There were many tear-dimmed eyes among Mr. Rogers's little friends as they took their last farewell of him.

Mr. Rogers's body remained last night at the Rogers home, and at 10 this morning was taken to the Unitarian Church, which Mr. Rogers built as a memorial to his mother. There for one hour the body lay in state as hundreds of school children filed past for their last view of Mr. Rogers's face. At 11 o'clock the general public was admitted.

At 2:30 the last sad rites were said. Rev. Frank L. Phalen, pastor of the Unitarian Church, conducted the services. Then the body was laid to rest in the Rogers Mausoleum in Riverside Cemetery.

Many Floral Tributes.

The children, particularly, appreciated the decision of the funeral committee to open the casket to public view, and as they filed past in the church, before the services, they had a last glimpse of the man who gave them their schools and who, in his later years, was always present at their graduation exercises.

The church presented a beautiful scene with its magnificent display of orchids, lilies and roses, banked in harmony with the beautiful stained windows. Three carloads of flowers, including a tribute from John D. Rockefeller, were brought to Fairhaven to-day.

At 1 o'clock the church was closed, and thereafter admission was only by card. Dr. Robert Collyer of the Church of the Messiah, New York; Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, a son of ex-President Eliot of Harvard and president of the American Unitarian Association, and Rev. Rush R. Shippen of Meadville, Pa., where Mr. Rogers supported a theological school, assisted in the services.

The choir sang Mr. Rogers's favorite hymns, "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Lead, Kindly Light," and these and others that the dead financier liked were played on the chimes of the church.

The immediate family party included Mrs. H. H. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Benjamin, Miss Beatrice Benjamin, Roger Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Urban H. Broughton and two children, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Coe and children, William and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rogers, Jr., and Rufus A. Rogers, a brother.

Among the business associates and personal friends attending were Colonel A. G. Payne, James M. Beck, John D. Ryan, Raymond Dupuy, Dr. C. C. Rice, the family physician; William Rockefeller, the Rev. Robert Collyer and Miss Kate I. Harrison, private secretary to Mr. Rogers.

The honorary pallbearers are Walter P. Winsor, George H. Tripp, Thomas A. Tripp, Job C. Tripp, Joseph K. Nye, John I. Bryant and Frank M. Marsh, all of Fairhaven, and Zephaniah W. Pease and Dr. C. A. Pratt of New Bedford.

FINED FOR KEEPING BIRD OF FREEDOM

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 22.—One of the finest specimens of the American eagle was recently captured alive near here and came into the possession of Lewis B. McCoy of this city. To-day State Game Protector Dr. Willett Kidd came here and placed Mr. McCoy under arrest, saying that it was against the law to keep an American eagle in captivity. Mr. McCoy had just refused $100 for the bird. He pleaded ignorance of the law and was fined $4.10, the minimum penalty. Fearing that the bird would be killed if set at liberty, Dr. Kidd boxed it up and sent it to Central Park, New York, this afternoon. He said that it was one of the finest eagles he had ever seen.

SNORE "CURE" GETS INVENTOR IN COURT

NEW YORK, May 22.—David Dale of Bradford, Ct., elderly, amiable and with side whiskers, and who claims to have done for snorers with a "snore cure" what Maxim has done for the rifle with a silencer, was arraigned in court in Brooklyn on complaint of Henry Pferdekamps, a barber. Pferdekamps said that he had been persuaded by Dale to invest $600 in the latter's invention, and declared that in so doing he had been "stung."

Dale replied that the barber had not given him time to make good, and offered to demonstrate his "cure" on the Court. When the latter declined he was held in $300 bail for further examination.

GIRL STEALS HER SISTER'S BEST BEAU

CINCINNATI, May 22.—Beach Pinney, forty-one, of Madisonville, was asked to choose between Carrie Strate, thirty, and her sister Lulu, twenty-one, with both of whom he was in love. He refused to announce his choice in the presence of the girls and their mother. Tuesday he came to Cincinnati with Lulu, and they were married. The girl is now living in a home prepared by Pinney in Madisonville, a suburb of this city. Carrie Strate to-day showed her friends an engagement ring which she says Pinney gave her some time ago to pledge their love.

THIRD DEGREE FOR FIANCE OF SLAIN GIRL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 22.—Charles Douglas, the fiance of Miss Laura E. Regester, the victim of the great Cranston strangling mystery, was put through an all-night third degree by the police.

He was mercilessly cross-examined for over six hours. From 8 o'clock last night until 2 o'clock this morning he was the target for over a dozen police heads.

Although Douglas was put through a merciless questioning, when he left police headquarters he showed no signs of breaking down.

With his hand raised aloft, he took oath that he was not the girl's slayer. He said:

"I hope that Heaven may strike me down in my tracks and that I may never leave this room alive if I had anything to do with the killing of that girl."

New Facts Unearthed.

The all-night conference with Douglas came as the climax to a series of sensational acts on the part of the police. In the attempt to shatter Douglas's nerve and to make him break down, the inspectors who have had charge of the case called in two of the three members of the Police Commission, the chief of police, the chief of inspectors and the deputy chief of inspectors.

Douglas was also confronted with Charles W. Regester, the dead girl's father, and by Horace Regester, the brother, and his wife.

Douglas was also brought face to face with Mr. and Mrs. Kranz, neighbors with whom he was on most intimate terms until about a month ago.

According to the police, Miss Regester and Douglas were very friendly with Kranz and his wife up to a month ago, when there was a disagreement over a matter which the police are keeping a secret. Since that time Douglas has never called on the Kranzs, nor have they ever visited the Douglas home.

Although Douglas was the victim of a battery of expert police officials, trained in the art of putting men through a third degree, he left police headquarters as cool as when he had entered six hours before.

First one police official and then another questioned Douglas, but they were each and all unable to shatter his nerve. He denied that he knew anything of how his sweetheart came to her death, and repeated time and time again that he loved Miss Regester, and that he had been willing to marry her at any time.

Douglas was taken to police headquarters shortly before 8 o'clock. He was taken into the office of the chief of inspectors, and there confronted by the police chiefs.

In the room besides Douglas were Chairman William H. Luther and Walter A. Presbrey of the Police Commission, Chief of Police Patrick Egan, Chief of Inspectors Constant S. Horton, Deputy Inspector Albert A. Nickerson, Inspectors George H. Monahan and John T. Haran, who have charge of the investigation; Charles Regester, the father of the slain girl; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Regester and Mr. and Mrs. Kranz, neighbors of the Regesters.

Douglas was given a chair in the centre of the room while the officials sat in a semi-circle around him. The Regesters and the Kranze were not brought in until towards the close of the cross-examination.

The girl's fiance was made to retell the story he told to the police of the Seventh station, when he was questioned the day after the finding of the girl's body.

At Home on Night of Crime.

He flatly denied that he knew who caused his sweetheart's death, and maintained that the first he knew of the girl's death was at 1 o'clock on the day the body was found.

Although they repeatedly tried to get Douglas to admit that he was away from home on the night of the crime, the police were unable to make him change his original declaration that he was asleep at the time the woman was slain.

"I did not leave the house that night," said Douglas. "I got home shortly after 6 o'clock and had supper with my father. Then I fixed a tea kettle, and at 7:30 went into my room and fell asleep on the bed. I was so tired that I didn't even take off my clothes.

"I was awakened some time between 10:30 and 11 o'clock by my father. I undressed and went back to sleep. I did not awaken again until the next morning.

"The first I knew that Laura had been killed was about 1 o'clock on May 11, the day the body was found. The news came as a most terrible shock.

"In all my life I never did a dishonorable thing to anyone. I loved Laura. To me she was the one girl in the world, and I know that she loved me.

"I was ready at any moment to marry her, whenever she said the word.

"I know what it means to be under suspicion, but as God is my judge I had nothing to do with Laura's de't'."

This story he was made to tell and retell to teach of the officials. A careful note was kept of Douguias's answers, but his story did not vary in any essential part from that which he gave to the police when questioned the first time.

"No, you are wrong," he said in a very calm way. "You are utterly mistaken. I have no more knowledge as to how Laura was killed than you have.

Immediately after Douglas had left a lengthy conference was held by the police officials, at the conclusion of which it was learned that a definite move is to be made to-day.

50 NEW COKE MILLIONAIRES

PITTSBURG, May 22.—It is positively stated here to-day that orders were sent out from the representatives of the Eastern financial interests who made an inspection of the independent coke properties in the Connellsville field this week to proceed at once with the appraisements on the property to be included in the proposed $60,000,000 merger.

This is taken as the final verdict of the underwriters who will finance the immense combination setting the seal of their approval on the project. It means the making of fifty new millionaires in the Connellsville field before October 1, next—for many of the settlements with the individual operators by the new syndicate's proposition gives them the privilege of calling for a cash settlement or part cash and part stock.

A BAD BACK IS A BAD HANDICAP

Few of us can afford to be idle, and to those who work, a sound, strong back is a necessity. A bad back prevents rest or sleep, and aches all day with a dull, tired throb.

Don't think because sharp twinges strike you when you lift, or twist about, or reach, that your work is too hard for you. Bad backs are common in every occupation. Those aches and twinges are only Nature's warnings that the kidneys need help.

It is easy to tell if the kidneys are sick, and are not thoroughly doing their work of filtering the blood. Backache is an early warning. Headache, dizzy spells, puffy swellings under the eyes or in the ankles and legs, nervousness, irritability, rheumatic pain and tired feelings also tell of kidney ills.

Examine the urine. If it is extremely pale and light, the kidneys are not getting out all of that uric poison. If it is dark colored and thick, passages too frequent, or too scanty, if there is any sediment deposited when it stands, if passages burn or pain, that is proof enough that the kidneys need attention.

"EVERY PICTURE TELLS A STORY"

Doan's Kidney Pills have given strong, sound backs to thousands. This remedy cures backache and urinary troubles by removing the cause, by curing the kidneys.

Seventy-five years ago Doan's Kidney Pills were curing kidney troubles in a settlement of Quaker farmers. Now the remedy is used in all the civilized world. It is praised abroad in many tongues. It is recommended at home by people you know.

BOSTON TESTIMONY.

Mrs. A. F. Donovan, 592 E. Third Street, Boston, Mass., says: "For years there was scarcely a day when I was free from backache and at times the misery became almost unbearable. My general health was declining and I found it difficult to do my housework. I experimented with remedies of every kind but was not helped in the least. With Doan's Kidney Pills, it was different. Four boxes completely cured me and restored me to good health."

TAFT'S DEBUT AS PRACTICAL JOKER BIG HIT

WASHINGTON, May 22.—President Taft came to the front as a practical joker on the trip to Petersburg, Va., and Charlotte, N. C., this week. At Petersburg he had luncheon on the veranda of a beautiful Southern mansion, and in front of him, on the lawn, were 1,000 men of the F. F. Vs. At the table nearest the veranda were the newspaper men of the Taft party, most of whom had been with him in the campaign, to Panama, and one of them around the world.

A picture was to be taken, and President Taft, accompanied by two Governors, Senators, several Congressmen and a lot of colonels of staff in gold braid, ranged themselves on the steps. When the President stood all of the 1,000 men on the lawn rose to their feet except one newspaper man. He was tired, had seen a lot of things like that, and was a little bored.

Besides, he was thinking about something else. The President, within ten feet of this first table, happened to see the newspaper man sitting in his chair and gazing disinterestedly about, and pointing a commanding finger, he shouted:

"Get up, there!"

The newspaper man, recognizing the familiar voice raised to roll-call volume, looked about alertly for the source of trouble. He saw nothing to cause alarm, but the next moment was jerked to his feet by a stout hand inserted in his collar.

"Get up!" commanded a voice in his ear. "He's got a right to order you to stand!"

The newspaper man stood obediently, still held by the indignant Virginian, who had yanked him from the chair.

LYNN MAN KILLED BY EXPRESS TRAIN

Walter G. Hatch of Lynn, aged thirty, married, but living apart from his wife, was found dead on the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks to-day, about 200 feet east of the Silsbee street bridge, close to the Central station, Lynn. It is supposed he was on his way home to his parents' house at No. 74 Johnson street, and was walking on the track when he was struck, probably by the Bangor express, which passes through Lynn at 3:50 a. m. He was a machinist, and worked for the General Electric Company.

SEEK GIRL FLEEING WITH "AFFINITY"

FITCHBURG, May 22.—Mrs. George Emerson of No. 8 Brigham street has asked the police to apprehend her eighteen-year-old daughter, Nora, who, she says, disappeared two days ago with Thomas Smithers, thirty-five, of Keene, N. H.

The police have no clew as to the girl's whereabouts except a postal postmarked Gardner which reads:

"I have gone with Tom. When you get this I shall be on my way South."

Smithers is now awaiting trial on a charge of bigamy in Keene. He is out on $750 bail. He is said to have a wife and two children living in Hurelton, N. Y.

BOY SUICIDE FOR GRIEF OVER FATHER

WORCESTER, May 22.—Love for his missing father caused seventeen-year-old Asa R. Bee of No. 11½ Fairfield street to commit suicide in his bedroom early to-day by shooting himself in the head with a rifle. The boy has brooded ever since his father disappeared from home four years ago. Recently the boy was found crying when other members of the household returned, and in response to their questions he said: "I am crying because father does not come home."

SLAYING OF MOTHER WITNESSED BY CHILD

NORFOLK, Va., May 22.—In the presence of their little daughter, Eugene Peebles, a young iron moulder, apparently insane, killed his wife here in a boarding house kept by the victim's twin sister.

Peebles made no statement other than to confess his crime and express a desire to die. The young wife was killed while in the act of writing a letter to her mother at Augusta, in which she told of her hard lot and Peebles' unjustified jealousy.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Woman Stops Shot, Saving Husband's Life.

DUBLIN—At Dunboyne Mrs. Charles Uniacke stopped a bullet with her body to prevent the murder of her husband by John Saville, an Englishman. Saville was arrested at his luxurious apartments in the fashionable Hotel Shelbourne today. Saville motored over to the Uniacke residence and was admitted. Mr. and Mrs. Uniacke entered the room simultaneously. Saville whipped a revolver from his pocket and fired at the husband. Mrs. Uniacke was badly wounded. The couple then compelled Saville to sign a confession of his attempt to murder at the point of a revolver. Saville's motive is unknown. His intended victim is wealthy.

Americans in Horse Show.

LONDON—Among the Americans whose entries have been received for the International horse show, June 5 to 15, are A. G. Vanderbilt, John Kerr and William H. Moore, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., and E. T. Stotesbury. The Messrs. Winans also will be seen in the ring again.

Warships to Prevent Massacre.

ROME—It is reported that both Italy and Austria have ordered two warships to steam for Turkish waters as a result of the appeal of the Catholic Bishops of Albania to the Pope. The Bishops declared they thought another massacre was imminent.

Dutch Kill Forty Natives.

AMSTERDAM—Forty natives were killed by Dutch troops in a battle at Padany, Sumatra, according to a report here to-day. The fighting resulted from the refusal of the natives to pay new taxes. The troops suffered three casualties.

Dowager Queen Must Retire.

ROME—Dowager Queen Margherita's physicians fear that she will be obliged to retire from public life on account of a queer malady which prevents her from turning her head. Her neck muscles have stiffened. She cannot move her head to either side.

Pope Forced to Rest.

ROME—The papal audiences have been suspended. The Pope is suffering from fatigue incident to the canonization ceremonies. His doctor has recommended that he take two days' rest.

Tax on Race Suicide.

VIENNA—In the Reichsrath the Finance Minister announced a plan for new taxes, including a supplementary income tax on bachelors, widows and childless married couples.

Insurance for the Sick.

LONDON—In a speech at Sheffield Prime Minister Asquith foreshadowed State insurance for sick and infirm workers. "That is our alternative to the poor law," he said.

Prisoners in Mutiny.

TOULON—Prisoners of the Lamaloue military jail mutinied to-day, but they were overpowered. The mutiny was quelled before they could do damage.

TAFT'S SON WINS ALUMNI TENNIS SET

WATERBURY, Ct., May 22.—The annual reunion of the alumni of Horace Taft's school was held to-day. In a tennis match between the alumni association and faculty on the town course Sidney B. Morton and L. B. McIntosh played Hildredth Bonner of New York and "Bob" Taft of Yale, son of the President, the latter team winning by 6-2, 3-6 and 6-4.

DOOR OPENED FOR A TRUANT HUSBAND

Albert J. Milligan, who is supposed to be secluded in Providence, R. I., may pack his grip and come back to Boston in safety as soon as he reads this bits of news in the AMERICAN. His wife, Mrs. Mary E. Milligan, who figured in the sensational auto-abduction on Thursday night which disturbed all Roxbury, went into Roxbury court to-day and induced Judge Williams to withdraw the warrant sworn out against her husband for non-support. So Milligan may now return to Boston fearless of arrest.

HARVARD HELD UP BY TARDY WOMEN

Three stylishly dressed women were transferred from the steamer Harvard to the tugboat Pallas in the harbor and brought back to India wharf. They had gone on board the Harvard to bid friends good-by, and when they started to go ashore they found the steamer was moving down the harbor at a fast clip. The women were cheered as they climbed down a ladder to the tugboat.

Good Things to Eat.

The housewife will find the materials for the family's Sunday dinner slightly dearer when she goes to market to-day. The cold weather of the past week is the reason given. The market is stocked with seasonable foods, however, and green things are plenty.

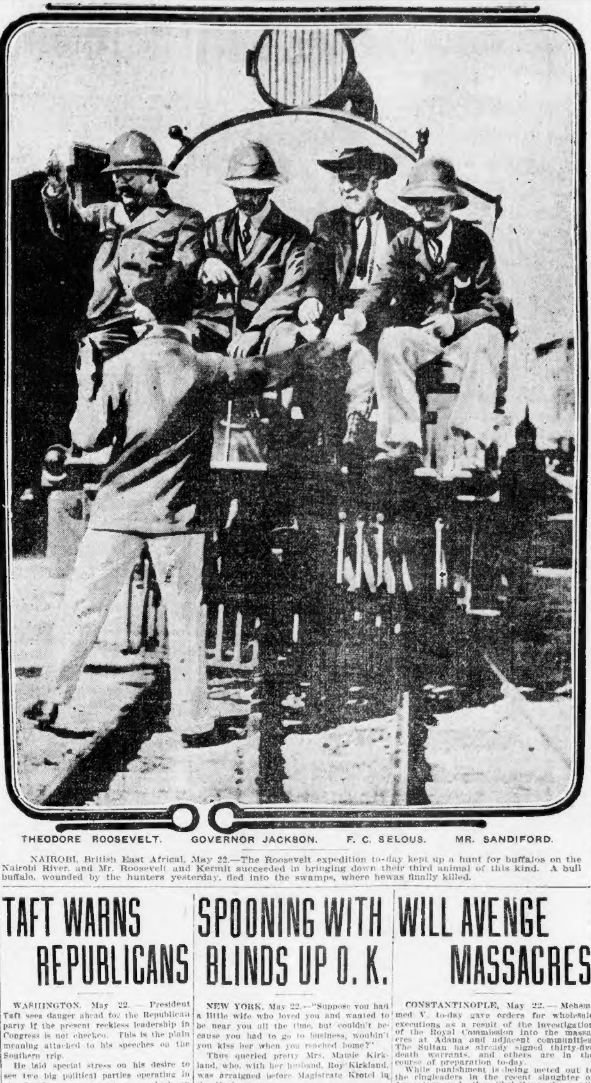
Jersey asparagus is 35 cents; native, 20 to 25. Green peas are 75 cents a peck; spinach and dandelions, 25 cents; string beans, 15 cents a quart. Bermuda potatoes bring 75 cents a peck. California cherries are 50 cents, and hothouse tomatoes 70 cents a pound.

Strawberries are 15 to 25 cents a quart. Cuban watermelons are $2.75 each, and South African peaches bring $1.50 each. Pineapples are 10 to 20 cents.

Mackerel are 25 to 35 cents. Shad sell for 50 cents. Fresh Western salmon is quoted at 40 cents a pound. The Penobscot variety is 50 cents. Lobsters are twenty cents a pound.

Butter is 25 to 35 cents. Eggs are 27 to 32 cents. The prices of meats remain normal.

Roosevelt on the Cowcatcher; First Photograph from Africa



THEODORE ROOSEVELT. GOVERNOR JACKSON. F. C. SELOUS. MR. SANDIFORD.

NAIROBI, British East Africa, May 22.—The Roosevelt expedition to-day kept up a hunt for buffalo on the Nairobi River, and Mr. Roosevelt and Kermit succeeded in bringing down their third animal of this kind. A bull buffalo, wounded by the hunters yesterday, fled into the swamps, where he was finally killed.

TAFT WARNS REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, May 22. — President Taft sees danger ahead for the Republican party if the present reckless leadership in Congress is not checked. This is the plain meaning attached to his speeches on the Southern trip.

He laid special stress on his desire to see two big political parties operating in the South, so as to act as a check on each other. In the South the President desires that opposition party to be the Republican party, with a strong organization in each State. But they who read the speeches as applying only to the South are losing the real meaning behind the President's words.

President Taft is just as anxious to have in the North a party that will give the Republicans healthy and vigorous opposition. His words are a warning to the Republican leaders to look for defeat as a penalty for a broken promise.

It is not difficult to see then that the President has in mind that if there was a party in Congress to-day in opposition to the Republicans, strong and virile, that was contesting every step taken by the Republicans—an opposition based on sharply defined issues and conducted with intelligence and patriotism—there would be a stronger disposition on the part of the Republican leaders to hew close to the promises of the Republican party made during the last national campaign.

Already the boast is being openly made here that the Republicans will lose the next House because of their repudiation of the platform promises, as testified in the Aldrich bill. It can be repeated here that every influence the President is able to exert will be brought to bear at the proper time to force a compliance with the promised downward revision of the tariff.

GEORGE FRED LOSES A SUIT OVER RENT

George Fred Williams, the Boston lawyer and political orator, lost his suit brought by the trustees of the Rogers estate, and will have to pay one month's rent for a suite of rooms that he did not occupy. Williams for many years was a tenant in the Rogers building, and when he decided to move the trustees expressed regret. A friendly suit was brought to settle the question of law. Williams contended that he was a tenant at sufferance, while the trustees argued that Williams was a tenant at will. At the first hearing before the Superior Court the question was decided in favor of Williams, but the Supreme Court reversed the decision.

FALCONIO CARDINAL RUMOR PERSISTENT

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Catholics are deeply interested in a persistent rumor to the effect that Mgr. Diomede Falconio, papal delegate in the United States, is to be elevated to the rank of cardinal, and that Mgr. Averna, apostolic delegate to Cuba, will succeed him here.

A COOK BOOK FOR THE POOR—In the SUNDAY AMERICAN will be found information on this subject that is invaluable.

SPOONING WITH BLINDS UP O. K.

NEW YORK, May 22.—"Suppose you had a little wife who loved you and wanted to be near you all the time, but couldn't because you had to go to business, wouldn't you kiss her when you reached home?"

Thus queried pretty Mrs. Mamie Kirkland, who, with her husband, Roy Kirkland, was arraigned before Magistrate Krotel in the Harlem court.

"Then suppose a horrid old maid, who is just jealous because she has no husband to kiss, should complain to the police," she continued, petulantly, "wouldn't you be indignant?

"Besides," she added, with a stamp of her foot, "you can spoon in the park when you're not married. I don't see why marriage should be less sentimental."

The Kirklands, who live at No. 136 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street, have been floating blissfully on the sea of matrimony for three years, and in that time have never encountered a storm. Like a true matrimonial mariner, Kirkland always hugs the shore after he comes home at night. The shore has blond hair and red lips. Sometimes in his ardor he forgets to close the blinds.

Opposite their apartments lives a spinster of Puritanical temperament, who has been shocked at this show of affection. Never thinking of pulling down her own shades, which would have precluded the view, she recently wrote to the police. The arrest of the husband and wife followed.

Magistrate Krotel dismissed the charge against them and made some very caustic remarks about "busybodies."

HALE AND BAILEY IN BUZZCART WAR

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Senator Bailey and Senator Hale have finally discovered a platform upon which one as a Democrat and the other as a Republican can stand and be in perfect accord. It is the anti-automobile platform, and upon it the two Senators, usually diametrically opposed to each other, agree. Bailey has made frequent attacks on the "bug wagon" in his speeches. Now Senator Hale has joined him and has declared in connection with the duty imposed upon them in the tariff bill that "they are not only a luxury, but a nuisance," and that "the duty of 50 per cent. upon them is only a small mitigation of their presence. Both Hale and Bailey are men of much wealth, but neither ever rides in a nautomobile.

CAWING CROW KEPT SWAMPSCOTT AWAKE

For keeping a cawing crow in his possession, Charles Comeau, caretaker of the Arthur Little estate at Swampscott, was before Judge Sisk in the Lynn Police Court to-day. The neighbors around the Little estate complained of Comeau for disturbing their rest. They declare the bird was kept caged up, and utters weird and piercing notes of despair all through the hours of slumber. Game Warden William H. Leonard of Foxboro investigated the complaint and found that Comeau had trapped the crow without a permit from the town clerk. Comeau was found guilty, but as the crow has been liberated the case was placed on file.

WILL AVENGE MASSACRES

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 22.—Mehemmed V. to-day gave orders for wholesale executions as a result of the investigation of the Royal Commission into the massacres at Adana and adjacent communities. The Sultan has already signed thirty-five death warrants, and others are in the course of preparation to-day.

While punishment is being meted out to the ringleaders in the recent slaughter of Armenians and other Christians, the conditions about Adana are becoming appalling. With the coming of warmer weather there is increasing danger that a terrific plague will descend upon the community, destroying by disease thousands who escaped the sword.

MOULIN ROUGE JUST ONCE? NO SAYS MAYOR

Paul Potter, author of the "Queen of the Moulin Rouge," to-day called up the Mayor's office on the 'phone and attempted to secure the sanction of Mayor Hibbard for a single performance of the show at the Boston Theatre next Wednesday night. Secretary White told the author that the matter was a "dead issue," and that no performance, not even a "trial" one, would be allowed.

In spite of the Mayor's stand Potter says that his show will be produced in Boston.

Potter will be publicly attacked from the pulpit of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church to-morrow night by Rev. Herbert S. Johnson. The clergyman said to-day:

"Boston cannot afford to allow the 'Queen of the Moulin Rouge' to be produced in this city. I will speak upon this question to-morrow night from the pulpit of my church and I will attack Mr. Potter for the stand he has taken on the matter.

"It may be true as Mr. Potter says that this play has been produced in Philadelphia, New York and Washington, but that is no reason why it should be allowed in Boston. This play is simply an appeal to the passions of men and women and is a devilish thing.

"If I had a son or daughter I would not want to send them to school in a city where immoral plays were allowed at the theatres.

"I believe in the theatre and I stand for the principle of the theatre. I believe the theatre is a good thing, but I do not believe that immoral plays should be allowed to be produced.

"This attempt of Mr. Potter to foist the 'Queen of the Moulin Rouge' on Boston should be frustrated. Wouldn't it look nice for a lot of young college boys and girls to witness the scene in which a lot of harlots disrobe in the city prison scene! The atmosphere of this play is vulgar and immoral and I cannot too strongly condemn it."

WHEATLAND LOSES $3,988 ASSESSMENT

The Supreme Court in a decision handed down to-day decided that George Wheatland is not entitled to receive $3,988 assessment paid in for constructing Mumfort and Ivy streets. The total assessment amounted to $20,000, and after the last payments had been made the court decided that the acts under which the betterments were made were unconstitutional. This test case was brought, and the Supreme Court ruled that because Wheatland had not brought suit within three months to recover taxes, as required by law, his suit was outlawed. This decree will have an important bearing on similar cases now pending.

21 GRAVES DUG AS DEATH THREAT

MOBILE, May 22.—Near a cemetery at Laurel, Miss., twenty-one graves recently dug have been discovered. Ten are in one spot, shaped like a coffin and laid off so as to represent a square and compass. Bones were found placed in peculiar positions. A bloody shirt was hung on a stake at the head of the first grave. Nine other graves 200 yards distant from the first lot are dug in a square. The two other graves are off by themselves, one dug round and the other square. The citizens of Laurel attribute the excavations to some secret organization, and believe it is a threat. The excitement is intense. The sheriff is investigating.

OELRICHS' PALACE SOLD TO T. F. WALSH

NEWPORT, R. I., May 22.—Rose Cliff, the marble palace of Mrs. Herman Oelrichs on Bellevue avenue, has been sold, it was learned to-day, to Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado millionaire. The price paid is $250,000, believed to be only about half its value. It is assessed for $280,000, and at one time was said to be worth $1,000,000. It is one of the handsomest of Newport's show places. Mrs. Oelrichs will leave here forever, she says, on Wednesday. She declares the resort has become "too common."

At Arlington Street Church.

At the Arlington Street Church the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham will preach at the morning service.

At King's Chapel, the pastor, the Rev. Howard N. Brown, will preach at the morning service.

The Rev. Dr. Roblin will preach at the morning service at the Columbus Avenue Universalist Church.

Hastings H. Hart, LL. D., chairman of the Children's Research Work of the Russell Sage Foundation, is to be one of the speakers at the sixtieth anniversary of the Children's Mission in the Arlington Street Church. There will be an organ recital under the direction of Benjamin L. Whepley.

ADDS FUN COLUMN TO CHURCH PAPER

PAWTUCKET, May 22.—Because he believes that a hereafter without a sense of humor would be sadly lacking, the Rev. Marion Law, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, has started practicing what he preaches by adding a funny column to the St. Paul's Mesenger, the parish paper he publishes.

The new department made its first appearance this week, headed by a defence of humor, written by Dr. Law. This begins with the words, "Is humor undignified?" a question that the writer proceeds to answer by saying it is not only dignified, but desirable, and that eternity, without a sense of humor, would be a failure.

NORUMBEGA OPEN SUNDAY.

Norumbega Park will open at 10 o'clock to-morrow for the season of 1909. This is a week earlier than the usual opening. They are not superstitious at Norumbega. To-morrow is the 23d of the month and this is Norumbega's thirteenth season. They figure that the combination of hoodoo dates must be a winner.

As Fit as a Fiddle—
on a Fine Spring Day

Plenty of Hires—drink it every day—will make you feel fit as a fiddle.
You can buy it at soda fountains or by the bottle—and have it on your table.
Hires is one of the most appetizing beverages in the world—but it is more than a mere beverage.

It is a tonic—a purifier. Drinking it is like having the vacuum cleaner in your house.

It excels any spring "invigorator" in actual accomplishment—and leaves no bad effect behind.

Not a medicine—no drugs, nor false stimulants—just a sparkling, delightful drink to take every time you're thirsty. Made of herbs and fruits and flowers—the purest in the world.

Every glass of Hires you drink soothes your stomach. It is a great digestive. People who drink it often do not have indigestion. Its healthful ingredients add to your blood power.

When you go to the fountain call for Hires by name. You will thoroughly enjoy a good cool drink which will keep you cool.

Children actually need it in hot weather.

ACTIVE TONE IN SUBURBAN REALTY FIELD

Sales of realty in the suburbs still continue to be reported in large numbers, overtopping those in the city proper.

In the South End the property at No. 251 West Newton street, adjoining the corner of St. Botolph street, has been purchased by George T. Cruft from William M. Conant et ux. The estate comprises a brick and stone dwelling upon a lot of about 1,900 square feet of land, all assessed for $11,000.

James H. Green has sold to William J. Mabie the frame house at Nos. 33-35 Coolidge road, near Mansfield street, Brighton. The property is assessed for a total of $5800.

The same grantor has sold to the same purchaser the frame house at No. 41 Coolidge road, comprising a frame house and 3456 square feet of land, all taxed on a valuation of $4800.

In Roxbury, a tract of 45,000 feet of land on Hutchins street, running through to Brookledge street, assessed for $15,750, has been sold by Ellen S. Eldredge et al. to the city of Boston.

Joel H. Lucas has sold to Jason B. Chandler a plot of 6722 square feet of land at the corner of Columbus avenue and Weston street, Roxbury, assessed for $11,200.

Sale in West Roxbury.

In West Roxbury the frame house and 7213 square feet of land at No. 10 Stratford avenue, corner of Clement street, assessed for a total of $4700, have been sold by William A. E. Finlay et ux. to Joseph A. L. Walker.

In Dorchester the Curtis & Pope Lumber Company has sold to Martha Helenedorff the two brick houses and 3850 square feet of land at Nos. 93-95 Alexander street, near Oleander street. The property is taxed for a total of $7200.

Andrew G. Carlson has sold to John Olson the frame house and 3,068 square feet of land at No. 150 Ballou avenue, corner of Mascot street, Dorchester. The estate is assessed for a total of $4100.

In the same district the property at No. 4 Blackwell street, near Neponset avenue, consisting of a frame house and 4000 feet of land, all assessed for $3400, have been sold by Joseph C. Means to Alice S. Blackwell. The land is taxed for $900.

Middleboro Farm Sold.

Annie E. Curley has sold to Joseph M. Levenson the two frame houses and 6400 feet of land at No. 18 Greenwich street, running through to No. 5 Greenwich place, Dorchester, assessed for a total of $2500, of which $800 is on the land.

The Chapin Farm Agency has sold for the owner, H. W. Carver, his old homestead and poultry farm on Thompson street, Middleboro, comprising 55 acres of land, an old-fashioned farm house, two barns, three poultry houses and numerous outbuildings and a fruit orchard. The estate was sold to James J. McDonald of Chelsea, who has already taken possession. The price is not made public.

GOOD LOOKS WIN FOR GIRL AMATEURS

There were some pretty neat looking girls in the amateur bill at the Columbia last evening, and just as clever and entertaining as they looked. In marked contrast to the girl amateurs were the young men, who failed dismally in everything they undertook. Of course there were a few exceptions in the latter class. For instance there was Joe King, who kept the crowd fully interested for fifteen minutes with lively acrobatic feats, and little Jerry McCarthy, the baseball mascot, who sang in a clever fashion.

Of the young women on the bill Helen Barry was the best as far as entertaining the crowd went, and sang with a vim and dash a song that had just the proper swing to make the audience join in.

The winners were Jerry McCarthy and the Fays, the latter being a dancing team, with the little girl gaining the most applause on account of her clever dancing.

TECH MEN CHOOSE TECHNIQUE STAFF

Officers elected by the M. I. T. Engineering Society and the department editors and business staff of Technique '11 were announced to-day. The engineering society officers are: President, L. T. Hemmenway, '10; vice-president, George McKae, '10; secretary, Carl H. Shaw, '10; treasurer, E. B. Greene, '10. The men who will assist B. R. Stevens, the editor-in-chief elected last week, in getting out the class book are: John L. McAllen, Portland, Ore., treasurer; Donald C. Blakewell, Yale '08, Pittsburg, assistant business manager; Loyd C. Cooley, Brookline, athletic editor; Walsely J. Seligman, Brookline, history editor; Theodore V. Parker, Marblehead, professor's editor.

M'CUMBER PLEADS FOR FREE LUMBER

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Senator McLaurin addressed the Senate to-day in opposition to the tariff bill and the principle of protection. At the conclusion of Senator McLaurin's speech Senator Aldrich asked unanimous consent that June 2 be fixed as a day for taking a final vote on the tariff bill and amendments. Senator Daniel objected. Senator Cummins expressed the hope that the point would not be insisted on, as there were Republican Senators who believed in a reduction of certain duties, and they wanted an opportunity to express their views. Senator McCumber then offered an amendment placing all grades of lumber on the free list, and addressed the Senate in support of the proposition.

MAY CALL TROOPS TO QUELL STRIKE

ATLANTA, Ga., May 22.—Declaring that the firemen's strike situation at Thomson is beyond his control, the sheriff of McDuffie County has telegraphed Governor Smith that sympathizers of the striking firemen are boarding Georgia Railroad trains and forcibly ejecting the negro firemen and compelling the sidetracking of trains at that point. Governor Smith, it is understood, will call out the State troops to preserve order. Representatives in Atlanta of the Clyde line state that Boston shipments have been slightly delayed.

MAINE-CHINA LINE PLANNED BY HARRIMAN

NEW YORK, May 22.—If E. H. Harriman gets possession of the Boston & Maine road, as Mr. Mellen and the other Harriman competitors in the New Haven seem to fear he will do, then it will be possible for a tourist to travel from Vanceboro, Me., across this great Western Continent clear to Hong Kong on railroad and steamship lines controlled by the Harriman interests.

This remarkable fact was made known, together with Mr. Harriman's method of directing the affairs of the 18,000 miles of railways which go to make up the Harriman system and of organizing the 80,000 men employed on these lines, was described by Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of the Harriman lines, in an address delivered before the New York Railroad Club.

The system of control of this vast army of men, Mr. Kruttschnitt said, while carried into effect by a number of men, was first formed in the mind of E. H. Harriman, whose initiative in organization has made possible the co-ordination of the many groups of railway which are to-day included in the Harriman system.

Has Two Steamship Lines.

Besides these rail lines the Harriman transportation system, including both the Atlantic and the Pacific steamship lines, he said, comprises 54,000 miles of water transportation lines, making a grand total of 72,000 miles of transportation lines which are under the direction of Mr. Harriman.

As Mr. Kruttschnitt put it a traveler can start from Vanceboro, Me., the easterly terminal of the Boston & Maine, and go as far as Hongkong, a distance of 9,902 miles without leaving the Harriman lines, and most of the return journey could be made traveling on still other Harriman lines, adding many thousand more miles to the total. And when the Mexican lines which are now building are completed, the Harriman lines will also extend from Seattle at the north to Guadalajara at the south, a distance of 3,169 miles.

How Roads Are Operated.

Mr. Kruttschnitt described the details of the operating system of the Harriman lines, and among other features of the Harriman scheme of control told of the standardization of equipment and of roadway, and of the system of uncovering the cause of all serious accidents on the Harriman lines through specially appointed committees in which representation is given to the public as well as to the management of the railroad.

The trend of public sentiment on matters affecting railroads, Mr. Kruttschnitt said, was carefully followed by means of reports made to headquarters by the general managers of the system, who receive copies of practically all newspapers and periodicals published in their districts, and who have reports drawn up indicating the attitude which the publications take toward questions which interest the management of the Harriman lines.

CLAFLIN PREDICTS PROSPERITY ERA

NEW YORK, May 22.—"I look for a long period of prosperity and good business throughout the country" said John Claflin, head of the well known wholesale dry goods firm.

"When the fact is taken into consideration that the tariff is still unsettled," he added, "business is really very good. The underlying conditions everywhere are splendid so far as I am able to judge.

"It seems to have been discovered in some quarters that there will be little change in tariff rates on the raw material of some large manufacturers, and little or no change on the manufactured product. These manufacturers are going ahead to the full capacity of their mills and factories in the production of their various commodities.

FORM $51,000,000 DRY GOODS POOL

NEW YORK, May 22.—The world's greatest dry goods combination has been launched. Its capital is $51,000,000, three times that of the Associated Merchants' Company, up to this time the largest aggregation of capital in the dry goods business.

John Claflin, president of the Associated Merchants' Company and of the firm of H. B. Claflin Company, is head of the new company, which has been christened the United Dry Goods Company of New York.

There was much uncertainty as to the exact purpose of the new company, but it is understood it will take over the already tremendous business of the Associated Merchants Company and include several large dry goods houses now outside the so-called trust.

HAYMARKET SQUARE CENTRE OF TRAFFIC

The remodelled Haymarket square subway station will be in operation to-morrow, and a new transfer system, requiring no checks, will be used. The station will be the most convenient place for passengers to transfer between the tunnel and subway systems. From northbound trains to northbound cars and back, and from southbound trains to southbound cars and back, are sub-passageways connecting the platforms and allowing free transfer in the same continuous direction. The station now becomes the new centre of the elevated system.

Contestants Active in the Great Struggle for World Tours.

SO fast is the interest growing in the AMERICAN'S great vacation tour offer to school children of New England, that it is creeping out in heavy correspondence from various sources inquiring and making guesses as to where the two teams of school boys that go racing around the world in opposite directions will pass each other on the other side of the globe. These letter are interesting in the extreme, coming as they do from widely scattered portions of the New England States. Siberia seems to be the place picked by the guessers where the teams will pass.

These are busy days for the contestants. All are active. No matter where you stand in the voting list, boys and girls, take this advice. It applies to the leaders as well as to the boys and girls who are lower on the list. DON'T LET UP. DON'T QUIT GATHERING SUBSCRIPTIONS UNTIL THE LAST DAY OF THE CONTEST.

Talk of the Town.

The AMERICAN Vacation Tours Contest is the talk of the town. So are you, if you are making the right sort of an effort. Your standing in this contest is an indication of your progressiveness. If you are doing your utmost you may rest assured that some one is going to take an interest in you. Some one is going to give you a lift. And, the higher you are on the list the bigger boosts you are going to get.

The race is going fast now, but watch the dust fly towards the end of the contest. New leaders may appear at any time. Those who were low at the last publication may display greater energy before the next one. Look out for the dark horses in the race.

Country Is Aroused.

This is the most exciting contest ever held. The tours offered are so far in excess of any prize ever offered school children that the entire country is aroused.

So go at it, boys and girls. Go at it to win. Keep at it until the close. Remember, "the last shot sometimes wins the battle," and you will need to have it in readiness.

Go among your friends to-day and see if you can round up a good bunch of subscriptions and bring them in to the Around-the-World Department. That's the way to go at it. Plan your campaign and then carry it out. FIGHT while the time is yours.

Energetic Workers in Front.

All over the New England States the boys and girls are putting forth their best efforts in the Boston American's Free Vacation Tour Contest, determined to be among the leaders and the energetic workers now stand high on the list.

Remember four boys will go around the world, four girls will go to Europe and twenty-five boys and twenty-five girls will go to New York, Niagara Falls and Washington, so you see there is a chance to be one of twenty-nine winners in each class. See the scope you have. See the big target you have to aim at. You can't help hitting it.

Every passing day now cuts into the fast approach of vacation time and as the end of the contest draws near there will be increased intensity in the spirit of school-day rivalry. The leaders in the contest are exerting all their energy and strength to keep their supremacy, while the others are struggling strenuously for places in the lead, and the friends and relatives of the candidates are doing their best to help their favorites in the race.

Five Weeks Left.

Remember there are only five more weeks before the contest closes. It is already going on the home stretch. In these five weeks there is plenty of time for any contestant, no matter what his standing at the present time may be, to jump in and win one of the travel tours. In fact, this very thing is likely to happen. There is just as much of a chance for you to be a dark horse as there is for any one else. But, you will have to work hard to be successful, for the leaders are determined to lose none of the ground they have already gained.

Just think what a trip around the world means. It will be the finest trip ever undertaken by a party of young tourists.

Trying for the Lead.

There is one patient little soldier in the ranks of the contestants who is taking time by the forelock and improving every moment to win a place among the leaders, Tressa Wiley of Beachmont, who made a high vault up the list this week. Miss Wiley announces that the Bachelor Girls Club of Beachmont is to give an entertainment and dance at Parker Hall, on the evening of May 25th. Among the well known talent will appear Miss Frances McLaughlin, of Somerville, in fancy dancing and Miss Veronia Madigan, violin solos. The affair promises to be a grand success and has excited wide local interest.

In a letter received to-day, the Pleasure Camping Club, of East Boston, pledges its support to the candidacy of William Fielding, No. 332 Chelsea street, East Boston. They are going to make a wide canvass for subscriptions for this young man and hope to land him a winner when the bell rings for the finals.

John Carmody, No. 24 West street, West Everett, writes in to the Around-the-World Editor to-day: "I'm right here with the goods. The goods are BOSTON AMERICAN subscriptions. I'm out to win." This letter is self explanatory. Can't you judge his calibre? He ought to win.

Means to Win.

Etta Craig, No. 5 Chester street, Readville, sends a resounding report from her suburb and means to represent her school and home town in the trips during her vacation, if hard work and determination will do it. She says there is no such word as fail and she would not be the one to coin it. She is the New Haven Railroad candidate.

Another pair of hard workers is Harold Watson, No. 37 Brook street, Brookline, and Margaret Shay, No. 54 Louis avenue, Arlington. Both of these candidates, while occupying a lower place on the list than some of the others, by no means intend to remain behind. They can see no reason why they should not flop in a big total and displace some of the leaders. So watch out for them.

Mary Buchanan, No. 85 Willow street, Chelsea, by a neat little turn pulled herself up a few points and landed among the leaders whose names will be published on Sunday. Many plans are being made by her friends and schoolmates.

George Shuman, No. 503 Franklin street, Cambridge, has not begun to bend his entire efforts on subscriptions yet, but he has now come to realize the value of the paid-in-advance subscriptions as a means of boosting him up the line, and he is now going to devote his time to this plan.

GORES TO STUDY EUROPEAN HOTELS

CHICAGO, May 22.—Paul Gores, chief clerk at the Annex, has resigned. After a tour of Europe, where he will study leading hotels of all the large cities, Mr. Gores will return to Chicago and assume the management of the New Blackstone Hotel, now in course of construction. Mr. Gores has been identified with hotel business in this city since 1877.

WHEAT JUMPS OVER PATTEN PROPHECY

CHICAGO, May 22.—May wheat to-day advanced to $1.32⅝, 1¼ cents higher than the close yesterday. This is more than seven cents over the sanguine prediction two months ago by James A. Patten, the bull leader. July also advanced a cent.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

The National Federation of Musical Clubs will hold its sixth biennial convention May 24-30, at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Conductor Gustav Strube will make his farewell appearance as conductor of the "Pop" concerts to-night. He will be succeeded on Monday night by Arthur Kautzenbach, who so ably directed last season. The program for to-night:

1. March, "Tannhaeuser" .... Wagner
2. Overture, "The Beautiful Galatea" .... Suppe
3. Selection, "Cavalleria Rusticana" .... Mascagni
4. Waltz, "Wine, Women and Song" .... Strauss
5. Selection, "Carmen" .... Bizet
6. "Meditation" from "Thais" .... Massenet
   Solo violin, Mr. J. Hoffmann.

7. Polonaise .... Liszt
8. Overture, "1812" .... Tschaikowsky
9. Overture, "Pomp and Circumstance" .... Elgar
10. American Fantasy .... Herbert
11. Waltz, "Espana" .... Waldteufel
12. March, "Boston 1915" .... Strube

Master Robert O'Leary of Canton, is to make his debut as violin virtuoso, at St. John's Hall in that town, Tuesday evening, May 25. Miss Lillian Shattuck will direct the concert.

Miss Laura Fisher of Marlboro street, will give a musical afternoon at the Tuileries, May 27.

Miss Fanny Levis will give a recital on piano at Jordan Hall, this evening.

Mrs. Frances Granger-Smith and pupils will give a piano recital at Steinert Hall, Friday evening, May 28. They will be assisted by Leon Van Vliet, cellist, Albert C. Orcutt, tenor and Miss May Miller, accompanist.

Don Perosi, the famous Italian priest-composer of the Vatican, has at last been induced by a well-known American concert manager to undertake a season over here. Oratorio is his favorite form of composition, and some of his works are said to be wonderful for purity of harmony. It is not yet certain whether he can come this season or next.

Professor Josef Adamowski's advanced pupils gave a concert, including ensemble classes, at the New England Conservatory of Music last evening.

The Spring recital of Miss Gilman of Commonwealth avenue will be given at the Tuileries on the evening of the twenty-seventh.

J. Bayard Currie, a graduate of this year's class of the Faelten School, was solo pianist at last Thursday's recital in Huntington Chambers Hall, and gives much promise for the future. Mr. Faelten was at the second piano, and thirteen other pupils in ensemble. The next recital by this school will be Thursday evening May 28, at the same hall.

The Fox-Buonamici School faculty gave a recital at Steinert Hall Thursday evening. A fine program of the modern composers was presented by Miss Laura M. Webster, George F. Hamer, Miss Mary V. Pratt, Miss Alice McDowell and Miss M. Rose Rockette.

The great Austrian pianist, Moriz Rosenthal, begins an American tour next season on October 17, and will appear at over one hundred concerts.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, May 22.—The market is strong in activity and weak in dulness. To a routinist, this fact is indicative of higher prices; to a technician it guarantees firm quotations. Both, however may be wrong in laying too much stress on precedent. It is certain, however, that the market is waiting; either waiting for some one to put it up or waiting on orders, and for orders from a field marshal.

The waiting commander is now supposed to be James R. Keene. The Street to-day was full of talk of Keene's leadership. The former Californian has not had the entire list in hand for many years. His last exploit was with Steel shares in 1904.

The advance in Steel common is attributed to Keene. The credit is plausible; the business of late suggests Keene manipulation. Otherwise, however, there is an absence of his wonted energy and methods. It is not his habit to lift stocks one day and neglect them the next. Doubtless his orders are limited to Steel; he probably is not to advance these issues unless the general situation warrants it, so the Street reasoned.

$ $ $

Recent authentic news is generally favorable. Loree's election to the chairmanship of the Kansas City Southern board, vice Herman Sielcken, is interpreted as a transfer of control from Dutch to American interests; more specifically, of the private purchases of control by the Harriman people. There had been a report for some time that the Harriman faction had re-entered the company in a paramount way, the reports being semi-officially confirmed by private communications from The Hague to American bankers of the sale of Kansas City stock to two representatives of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Loree has been regarded as one of Harriman's able lieutenants and his selection as chairman of the Kansas City Southern is taken as meaning permanent control of the property by Harriman.

Evidently Loree has reingratiated himself into the graces of the Moore party. Judge Moore is considerably interested in the Delaware & Hudson, and it is not likely that he would be an important investor in that road if a reconciliation had not taken place. The election of Loree to the presidency of the Rock Island system, his short regency and sudden deposition are an interesting chapter in railroad history, that may be written some day with profit to the railway world. The Moores had lifted Loree from the Baltimore & Ohio at a then unprecedented salary, which they paid in full without a complete requital of services. Something in the meanwhile has happened to restore mutual confidence.

London pretends to be selling American stocks, but is cabling to New York brokers to buy calls quietly on the standard issues, particular Steel. It seems that London has sold calls on Steel that have several months to run. These calls are already showing profits to the purchasers and British financiers are worried at the monumental strength of the stock. It begins to look as though leading financiers were willing to put their entire fortune in Steel common, having decided that the trust is the safest organization now before the public. It has paid all fixed charges and has shown a surplus through two severe panics. The stock is considered now a fairly seasoned investment.

Most remarkable of the recent developments is the fact that of a record high price of 131¼ for May wheat in Chicago had no effect on the stock market. Professionals feel that a stock market that can ignore panic prices in grain must be strong indeed. The reason the market does ignore the price of grain is that wheat is selling high not so much because there is a short supply or a bad outlook for the crop, as because there is unusual demand, due to the increased number of persons who consume wheat.

Of great importance to securities and the money market is the estimate of the banking situation in Chicago, as illustrating the monetary condition in the West. A canvass of Chicago banks shows that since the reports of the latter part of April, deposits have risen to an extent discouraging to bankers who had hoped for better rates within a few weeks. Money has poured into Chicago from the interior, so that deposits are now at a maximum, the highest in the history of Western banking. The totals stand more than $800,000,000.

Increase of the dividend of Calumet & Hecla has been announced. The advance is only a dollar a share, but the fact that any advance is made is significant of better times in the copper metal market. Copper metal is very strong at the highest prices that have prevailed for several months, and large sales were reported. Several important flotations are soon to be announced in the copper stock market. Interest just now seems to be centred around the doings of Adolph Lewisohn, who is in Europe. Lewisohn stocks are prime favorites. Ray Central, which was underwritten at $1.10, is active above $3 a share and the Gila Copper Company, which is underwritten at 50 cents a share, has been oversubscribed twenty times and will appear in public at around $5. Not only are the porphyry coppers strong and active, but Goldfield Consolidated, which has been a laggard recently, suddenly jumped yesterday nearly a dollar a share. Silver stocks are also in active demand, and the whole aspect of the mining stock market is cheerful.

The annual report of the Pennsylvania Company west of Pittsburg, sent to stockholders last night, shows that the net income for the year ended 1908 was only $1,629,643 less than for 1907. As this year's business is known to be much better than last, the chances are that the year 1909 will exceed that of 1907, and come near showing a record net income for the company. This is a good showing, even though it is produced as the result of very drastic reductions in operating expenses. The report of President James McCrea shows that had it not been for a reduction in the maximum rates of passenger fares and in the compensation received from the government for carrying the mails and for the additional expense to which the company was put in complying with the Federal and State enactments restricting the hours of labor, there would have been a net increase for the year.

NORTH BUTTE STOCK FEATURE

STATE STREET, May 22.—Closing—Outside of North Butte there was little to attract attention in the local market during the two-hour session. Persistent buying by Paine sent the price up from 56 to 59½. The public is as much in the dark as to the real purpose of these market movements as ever, but the fact remains that they have done immeasurable harm to public sentiment.

The continued strength of U. S. Steel common is marvelled at, and the "street" is wondering at the force behind this sustained movement. A new high record was made this forenoon at 60⅜.

Butte Coalition stiffened ¾ to 26 in sympathy with the strength of North Butte. Amalgamated also was firm, stiffening over a point to 84. U. S. Mining was also in evidence at 50 and better, and U. S. Coal & Oil, managed by the same people, stiffened to 33½. Pool operations accounted for the strength.

Curb dealings were quiet, with the exception of Southwestern Development, which was active at from 33 to 36 cents. Bay State Gas fell to 52 cents, which is its lowest for some little time. Inspiration stiffened to 8.

CUT OFF PASSES TO STOP SMUGGLING

WASHINGTON, May 22.—To close every possible avenue to smugglers at the port of New York, the Treasury Department made a new ruling to-day limiting to Collector Loeb the right to issue passes to persons who want to meet incoming steamships down the bay. Hereafter they will have to be well vouched for or else be known to the Collector, and the number of passes in the future will be small. Much smuggling has been done by those who go aboard vessels ostensibly to meet friends returning from abroad.

STEEL COMMON AT TOP PRICE

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Although trading was dull in Wall street to-day stocks were strong around their previous high records. Steel common, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading were the favorites with gains averaging one point scattered throughout the list.

Steel common sold at its high record price of 60⅜, and a large volume of stocks seemed to be coming out around that figure. Southern Railway advanced one point as did the preferred.

Specialties while not very active were strong and fractionally higher with distillers a leader.

The report of the American Railway Association for the two weeks ended May 12 shows an increase of 2,151 in the number of idle freight cars. This brings the total number up to 284,479. Box cars increased 5,936, but coal and gondolas showed a decrease of 4,854.

The increase is said to be due to large numbers of new cars put out and the employment of old cars that have been in the repair shops. In London the American shares were irregular with the Harriman shares the leaders. On the New York curb market silver shares sold around their high record prices. Copper stocks displayed strength. Trading on the outside market was dull.

DOES NEGRO SUFFER LESS THAN MAN WHO WAS BORN WHITE?

Prominent Bostonians, including such men as William Lloyd Garrison, the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson and Henry B. Blackwell, were indignant to-day when they learned of Justice Dugro's remarkable decision that a negro is not entitled to as much damages as a white man because he doesn't suffer so much. The judge, in accordance with this view, cut damages of $2,500 awarded to a Pullman porter for false arrest to $300. Here are some Boston views on it:

William Lloyd Garrison, when seen at the offices of the American Free Trade League at No. 6 Beacon street, said:

"This decision is shallow and outrageous. It will be laughed at in the Court of Reason. It savors more of despotism than of a democracy."

Makes Two Classes.

Henry B. Blackwell, editor of the Woman's Journal, champion of woman suffrage, said:

"The decision of Judge Dugro is not only in the highest degree undemocratic and unjust, but absolutely in conflict with the Constitution of the United States and the State of New York.

"All persons born and naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof are citizens of the United States and of the State in which they reside. Citizens of the United States are guaranteed equal rights and privileges by the fourteenth amendment.

"This decision, if sustained, would establish class distinctions, which are contrary to our principals and to the genius of American institutions."

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, said:

"If Justice Dugro said what he is quoted as saying in regard to the feelings of negroes, he should be deposed from the bench, and the quicker the better. He has not only insulted the negro, but also the white race. The revulsion of feeling against his statement should be so strong that he would be forced to quit the position he occupies. He ought to be ashamed of himself for having made such statements. He should have the contempt of all lovers of justice. In his declaration he has shown a complete lack of justice.

"Personally I have had a good deal of experience with the negro, and it is absurd for Justice Dugro to say that the negro has less delicacy of feeling than the white. The negro is exceedingly emotional and sensitive."

"Decision Absurd."

Edward T. Harrington, the largest real estate broker in Boston, declared:

"According to the Constitution of the United States all men are born free and equal, and this decision of Judge Dugro may be called absurd."

William L. Reed, colored messenger to the Governor of Massachusetts, a prominent politician and ex-Representative, 1906-1907, said:

"The decision is in line with the growing tendency to humiliate and crush the negro. When Boston sits supinely by and allows a convention of visiting labor men to drive a competent negro stenographer from its hall, merely because he happens to be black, it invites and encourages just such decisions. It is unconstitutional and unless the negro himself rises to fight this act, he deserves the shame."

John H. Charleston of the State House, a colored man who has great influence with his race, said:

"I think this is one of the things it behooves us as a race to use every effort in passing legislation against such a decision. The common sense view is that it violates the constitution. The best self-respecting white people will not allow such a decision to prevail."

Negro Not Equal of the White Man, Declares Judge

"He was a colored man, and while the law says he is as good as the President of the United States, it would be a bad argument to say he is as good in many senses.

"He would not be hurt as much, if put in prison, as another man would be. He is a colored man, and the fact that he is colored must be considered.

"You cannot say that he is just the same as a white man, when you come to say how much his shame will suffer. He might suffer more. But, after all, what are the probabilities about it?

"Is it likely that a colored man, arrested and imprisoned, feels as much shame as a white man—of any circumstance—might? In one sense a colored man is just as good as a white man, for the law says he is, but he has not the same amount of injury under all circumstances that a white man would have."—Decision of Supreme Judge Dugro in New York.

ARMY HONORED BOGUS MAJOR

NEW YORK, May 22.—Major A. C. P. Berdie-McGreal, commanding Seventh Dragoon Guards, His Majesty's service, departed from the Hotel Knickerbocker yesterday by request of the management.

Simultaneously with the incident or shortly thereafter there was an epidemic of self-administered kicks among the hospitable United States army officers stationed on Governor's Island. Likewise, an epidemic of laughter and fun-poking among certain other officers at the same post.

For the "major"—Berdie of the Guards, they will always call him on the Island—had turned out after having been wined and dined and saluted for a week or so to be no major whatever but an umbrella salesman with a passion for military honors.

FREE RHEUMATISM CURE

A Home Cure Will Be Given FREE by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bed ridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I will send a free trial of this precious remedy by mail, postpaid to any sufferer who writes for it. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it to me, to-day.

HIGH SPENDER RUINED BANK

NEW YORK, May 22.—The extravagance of Henry A. Ensign, a member of the former banking firm of E. D. Shepard & Company, now going through bankruptcy, was the subject of the testimony of Arthur W. Lincoln, manager of the firm, in the hearing of the proceedings before United States Commissioner Alexander. Lincoln revealed the history of some of the firm's transactions that preceded the bankruptcy petition which was brought by the Yankee Coal Company, one of the companies controlled by E. D. Shepard & Company.

Ensigne, declared Lincoln, while acting at Raton, N. M., as manager of the Western interests of the firm, spent about $125,000 a year for living expenses.

He occupied a ranch house furnished as luxuriously as a palace, kept 150 horses and employed two chauffeurs each at $100 a month.

Lincoln finally threatened to throw up his $1,000 a week job as manager of the concern unless Ensign severed his connection with it. Ensign did leave the firm and accepted a $12,000 annual honorarium to stay away from its offices at No. 31 Nassau street.

The difficulties of the firm, Lincoln testified, all resulted from Ensign's extravagance in management of the firm's interests at Raton.

WOMAN OFFERED CASH TO JUDGE

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 22.—"Take this and do what you can for me," said Mrs. Helen Fessler, a wealthy woman, of North Fullerton avenue, this town, to Judge Henry L. Yost, when she was arraigned before him in Police Court on a charge of disorderly conduct. In her hand was a thick roll of greenbacks. Judge Yost expressed surprise at the woman's offer and said he would order her locked up but for the fact that she is the mother of several small children.

Mrs. Fessler was charged with throwing stones through the barn of a neighbor, John Cosgrove. She was held in $200 bail for the Grand Jury, and offered that amount in cash. This was refused and real estate belonging to her was accepted as security.

BROKER WHO SHINED SHOES DEMANDS $50

CHICAGO, May 22.—Kenneth F. Griffith, a well-known member of the Board of Trade, sat in one of the chairs in the shoe-shining stand and yelled in vain for the boy in attendance there. "I'd give $50 if anybody was ever around here when he is wanted," exclaimed Griffith, after a few vain shouts had exhausted his patience.

John Geltmacher, another broker, with gray whiskers and a ministerial appearance, heard the offer, seized the brushes and polish and went to work on Griffith's shoes. Within a few minutes—or before the first shoe was half finished—there were several hundred men around the stand cheering and shouting. Mr. Geltmacher finished the job but failed to collect the $50. He says Griffith must pay or stand a lawsuit.

GIRL GETS $15,000; RECORD VERDICT

NEW YORK, May 22.—The record verdict in a breach of promise suit in the City Court was returned when a jury awarded Rosino Pecora $15,000 in her suit for $25,000 against Salvatore Del Gaudio, manager of a medical institute. The young woman testified that she came here from Italy under Del Gaudio's promise to marry her and that when he tried to desert her two years ago she started suit for breach of promise. She said that he induced her to sign a paper which he said was a marriage contract, but which later proved to be a release in the breach of promise action.

HALF-DALLOR, HALF-MILE TAXI RATE

NEW YORK, May 22.—The Committee on Laws and Legislation of the Board of Aldermen decided to report out next Tuesday the proposed ordinance bringing the taxicabs under the supervision of special inspectors to be appointed by the chief of the Bureau of Licenses. It was agreed, however, that the clauses in the ordinance relating to the fixing of rates should be eliminated. The companies contend that they cannot run their cabs profitably except on a basis of 50 cents for the first half mile and many members of the Board of Aldermen agree.

REFORM WAVE FOR NEWPORT

NEWPORT, May 22.—A crusade against illegal liquor traffic, police and other municipal graft and lawlessness in general has been inaugurated by ex-Mayor F. P. Garrettson, the society man who turned grocer, and startling exposures are expected from an investigation which will be made.

In a public announcement the former Mayor said that there are seventy-nine places in Newport where liquor is sold illegally, and that if necessary he will carry his warfare beyond the present Mayor and invoke the aid of the Governor to suppress them.

The purity crusade also aims at the Newport Police Relief Fund Association, which annually receives large contributions from cottagers, evidently, it is said, in response to circular letters appealing for aid, with the apparent sanction of the police department.

It is charged by an evening paper supporting the former Mayor's crusade that the relief fund amounts to more than $50,000; that the association has not made public any financial statement, and that attempts to get an accounting have failed.

WOMAN AWARDED 6 CENTS FOR SLANDER

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 22.—Mrs. James Walsh of Rutherford who brought a $10,000 suit for slander against a neighbor, Ellis G. Welsh, a New York tailor, has been awarded six cents.

Mrs. Walsh, whose husband is a buyer for a New York dry goods store, says Welsh told another neighbor a damaging story about her. This Welsh denied. The defendant called several other neighbors, who testified that Mrs. Walsh was addicted to the use of liquor. Mr. Walsh and a married daughter testified that the plaintiff never drank intoxicating liquors.

HOUSES CRUSHED IN $400,000 FIRE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 22.—The Gilbert Block, seven stories high, containing the Ira H. Smith department store and scores of office suites, was destroyed by fire early to-day, with a loss estimated at $400,000. The south wall of the structure fell, crushing beneath it two frame residences. A dozen persons were rescued from the houses by the police and firemen.

WRIGHT'S SISTER TO REMAIN A TEACHER

DAYTON, O., May 22.—Although she is the sister of two famous brothers, who are reputed to be making fortunes in selling rights for the use of their aeroplane, Miss Katherine Wright will not give up the task of teaching school. She was given a leave of absence from her duties as teacher in the high school at the beginning of the year so she could visit her brothers in France.

READING CHILDREN AS CITY CLEANERS

READING, May 22.—For the first time in the history of this town the school children are cleaning up the streets, vacant lots and unsightly dumping grounds of their rubbish.

Miss Alice Barrows, a teacher at the Centre School, who is also a member of the Reading Woman's Club, has been instrumental in interesting over two hundred children in the movement, in providing them with badges and directing their organization.

SCARED TO DEATH BY SEARCHLIGHT

FOROCHE, La., May 22.—Adeline Hawkins, a negress, was literally frightened to death here by the powerful searchlight of the battleship Mississippi on the river. "It is the judgment light" she exclaimed and fell dead.

BAN PLACED ON NEW SHAW PLAY

LONDON, May 22.—The censor has prohibited the production of George Bernard Shaw's new play, "The Showing up of Blanco Posnet." The play, which was on a theological subject, was in advanced rehearsal for an early production.

Mr. Shaw, in a characteristic interview, says:

"The censor objects to the play, not because it is irreligious, but because it is religious and because it suggests belief in God by picturing a set of un-godly people who wake up to the perception that God is a real, vital and active existence.

"The remarkable thing is that, while it is permissible to represent God as a quaintly costumed figure, as in 'Everyman,' any verbal allusion to Him is immediately tabooed."

Mr. Shaw concluded the interview by saying that he was willing to cut out or reasonably change any offending passage, "but the censor demands practically that I should cut out the whole play; therefore there was no alternative but to abandon the production."

A COOK BOOK FOR THE POOR—In the SUNDAY AMERICAN will be found information on this subject that is invaluable.

SCHOOL GIRLS HONOR PATRON BY WIRELESS

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—P. F. McGowan, president of the Board of Aldermen of New York city, who is attending the convention here of the Royal Arcanum, was surprised to-day to receive a "wireless telegram" from his girl admirers at the Washington Irving High School of New York. It read: "Dear Mr. McGowan: Don't let those St. Louis school people find out how nice you are or they will try to steal you from us."

It was signed: "The Girls of the School." McGowan greatly enjoyed the message from the girls, with whom he is a favorite on account of his efforts toward securing them a new school building.

UNFROCKED SHAKER ELDER TAKEN BACK

PITTSFIELD, May 22.—In fulfilment of the predictions made last March, when Ernest Pick, the Shaker, was unfrocked in the community of Shakers at Mt. Lebanon, after twenty years of service as a member, word was received at the settlement to-day that Pick has been admitted again to the Shaker faith at Enfield, Ct.

When Pick, who is an Austrian, was unfrocked for paying too much attention to an eldress, he withdrew thousands of dollars that he had placed in the Shaker treasury and went forth, a wanderer over the face of the earth, as they supposed at Mt. Lebanon.

MRS. TAFT TO ARRIVE EARLY NEXT MONTH

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Mrs. Taft will probably leave for the "Summer capitol" at Beverly, Mass., early in June, it was announced to-day, even if it appears that the President will be detained in Washington by the tariff until after July 1.

Although Mrs. Taft is making satisfactory progress from the slight nervous breakdown which she suffered several days ago, she probably will be obliged to give up social duties for some time.

IRISH ENVOYS SAY FAREWELL TO DUBLIN

DUBLIN, May 22.—Matthew Cummings and Fr. O'Donnell paid their farewell visit to Cardinal Logue to-day. The Cork corporation unanimously agreed to confer the freedom of the city on Mr. Cummings and Fr. O'Donnell next Tuesday.

STORM SWEEPS NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A northeast storm that swept over New York with great force to-day caused abnormal conditions along the water front. The strong wind drove the tide up to an unusual height, and many cellars in West street were flooded. At the Battery the water reached within fourteen inches of the top of the sea wall.

BROCKTON GIRL REPORTED LOST

BROCKTON, May 22.—Eleven-year-old Etta May Kelley, daughter of Mrs. Eliza Kelley of West Dennis, is still missing and the police of this and surrounding cities and towns have taken up the hunt for her.

She disappeared from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Baker at No. 40 North Montello street, this city, last Tuesday afternoon, when she went across the street to make a purchase and failed to return.

The child was seen later in the afternoon of the same day in Avon, about two and a half miles from Brockton, but from that time all trace of her is lost. The mother had supposed the child had returned to her home in West Dennis with some friends and did not worry, but when she arrived there the following day and found the child still missing she reported the matter to the police.

The little girl is described as of dark complexion and pretty with a slight defect in one eye.

PRIEST RESIGNS AS COLLEGE HEAD

FAIRHAVEN, May 22.—Rev. Fr. Adalbert, who came here from Hawaii about a year ago to assume the presidency of the Fairhaven College, established by the Fathers of the Sacred Heart, has resigned, requesting that he be sent to a warmer climate, as his health has become affected during his residence in Fairhaven. Rev. Fr. Adalbert has accordingly been assigned to California, where he will start another house of the order, which will be the second in the United States.

BALTIMORE PASTOR CALLED TO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 22.—Rev. John Timothy Stone, formerly of the Brown Memorial Church of Baltimore, has arrived in Chicago to assume his duties as pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church. Beginning to-morrow, Dr. Stone will be heard each Sunday at the North Side Church for six weeks, and at the end of that period he leaves for New Hampshire for his Summer vacation.

EDUCATORS TO RUN COLLEGES ON TRUST PLAN

NEW YORK, May 22.—The reorganization of the colleges of America upon a business basis is the object proposed by the Higher Education Association of New York city, which was incorporated at Albany by Charles E. Sprague, Edwin S. Slosson and Clarence F. Birdseye. The directors are George B. Cortelyou, Charles E. Sprague and John H. Finley, and the initial capital is $300,000.

Author Outlines Work

The project is practically the work of Mr. Birdseye, who is the author of several books on college administration. Mr. Birdseye gave the following outline of the plans of the association last night:

"Our first step will be to start a campaign of education. We shall publish a magazine to be called the American College, in which all problems of administration will be discussed. Then a complete investigation will be made by experts into the affairs of the various colleges, with a view to determining just where the trouble lies.

"Up to this time the management has been solely in the hands of the pedagogues. They have failed, and college affairs are at present in a state of chaos. We believe that the alumni are the men best qualified to take hold, as in their ranks are numbered some of the most brilliant administrators and business men of the country, and the subject is one in which they have a genuine interest.

Too Much School Jealousy.

"The colleges are being attacked on all sides now, and not without reason, but the attacks are made superficially. We want to get to the heart of the trouble and find out just what is wrong and what is the remedy. One trouble lies in the jealousy which exists between the different schools. A little college in a country town wants to have everything that a great institution like Harvard or Yale has, and as the men at its head are not business men, they fail to realize the absurdity of their position.

"The colleges of this country have assets valued at $600,000,000, with an income of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000. It is only rational that such vast interests must be conducted on purely business lines if that money is to be expended wisely and if the people are to get just value for their money."

The association expects to be financed by voluntary subscriptions from the different alumni bodies. The promoters believe that they will have no difficulty in raising an income of at least $100,000 a year.

CUT AIR TRIP SHORT TO ENJOY DINNER

NORTH ADAMS, May 22.—N. H. Arnold of this city piloted the balloon North Adams No. 1 in an ascension from here, carrying as passengers A. D. Converse of Winchendon and W. H. Richardson of Brattleboro, Vt. The balloon landed on the farm of George W. Hodge at Greenfield Centre, N. Y., about six miles northwest of Saratoga Springs. Commenting on the descent, he remarked that while the balloon was sailing near the ground over Mr. Hodges' farm two of the farmer's daughters invited the party to come down and have dinner, and they decided to accept the invitation.

NEW YORK-SEATTLE RUN IN FOUR DAYS

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The transmission of mails from New York to Seattle in four days is a certainty, from London to Seattle in nine days a possibility of the near future. This remarkable lessening of the time between coast and coast is the result of a new train service that will be put into effect next Sunday west from Chicago. The postoffice authorities already have been advised of the change, and they are jubilant.

WISTER ILL WITH STRANGE AILMENT

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 22.—Suffering from a mysterious illness, the precise nature of which has completely baffled half a dozen physicians, Owen Wister, the novelist, remains seriously ill at Butler Place, the old Wister country home, York road and Olney avenue.

Extreme physical weakness has combined with severe nervous depression to put an end to his literary labors and to render nearly all mental work impossible.

WIFE CHARGES PLOT TO RUIN BANKER MORSE

NEW YORK, May 22.—In an interview given out to-day, Mrs. Charles W. Morse, wife of the former banker, who is now in the Tombs under sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment for wrecking the Bank of North America, tells how she sold her jewels, mortgaged her home and sacrificed everything in an effort to prove her husband innocent.

Mrs. Morse is now working to have him admitted to bail pending a fight for an appeal in his case. His application for an appeal and for bail will be heard on June 14 next. Mrs. Morse said that of an indebtedness of $7,000,000, more than $5,000,000 has been paid, and if allowed to go free under bonds he would be able to pay every penny.

"Suits Are Blackmail."

"My husband is more than anxious that all of his debts be paid," she said at her home, No. 728 Fifth avenue. "They would be paid could he have the liberty every man is entitled to under the law. My husband had no judgments against him when he was cast into prison. The government officials boasted that they would ruin him and all his enterprises. During his imprisonment many judgments have been obtained against him, many suits brought which are purely and simply blackmail."

When asked if she had sold her jewels to satisfy creditors, Mrs. Morse said: "Of course. What wife would not? I was only happy that I had them to sell. And I had a great many—at one time.

Would Share Prison Fate.

"If I could only be with my husband in the Tombs—if I could only feel that if he has to go to prison I could be permitted to go too! Of course, I spent every moment that I am permitted to with him. But he is despondent. He feels that such powerful influences are at work against him.

"Do you remember that in suspending sentence on Mr. Curtis (the former president of the Bank of North America), Judge Hough said that 'Curtis lost everything through this man Morse?'

"When my husband met Mr. Curtis the latter was making a salary of $4,000 a year. My husband gave him $15,000. I want justice done my husband. Long ago persons high in power vowed that they would ruin Mr. Morse. They have kept their vow against justice and against truth."

BIBLE SOCIETY ASKS $500,000 DONATION

CHICAGO, May 22.—The American Bible Society has issued an appeal for a popular offering from churches and individuals throughout the United States on July 4. The appeal is predicated on the offer of Mrs. Russell Sage of $500,000 for the endowment of the society, provided a like sum is raised by the organization this year. The society's first president, Elias Boudinot, was president of the Continental Congress at the time of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, a fact which explains the selection of July 4 for the subscriptions.

GEORGE O. DRAPER HOME DESTROYED

HOPEDALE, May 22.—The $73,000 former residence of George Otis Draper, nephew of Governor Eben S. Draper, and son of General William F. Draper, is in ruins to-day as the result of fire last night. The police are working on a theory it may have been of incendiary origin, although some of the firemen are inclined to believe that a defective wire was responsible.

BENEFIT FOR MACK.

Any Make Piano
Always At A Sacrifice

OPEN TONIGHT TILL 9

No one ever paid half as much for a new piano here, no matter what make, as it would cost them at any retail piano house in New England—We don't pretend to make our profits out of the sale of pianos—If our income came only from this source the Piano Trust would have driven us to the wall and put us out of business long ago—Our other interests cannot be damaged in the slightest by the Trust—They can fight us only in the piano department of our business—Our fighting fund may not be as large as that of the Piano Trust, but we have a more effective weapon with which to battle than the "Combine," and that is the Cut, No-Profit prices that we put on Trust Pianos.

Some Very Fine Bargains This Week

Exceptionally good—Many beautifully made pianos which have been slightly used will be sold at very low prices, lower than usual—They have been put into the best condition by our piano experts and are fully guaranteed—These, together with a lot of fine new pianos, will be sacrificed—If you don't get the piano bargain of your life here this week blame only yourself.

$5 Down--$1 a Week

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little—go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 22.—Harvard and Princeton play their second championship baseball game on Osborne Field this afternoon, the Tigers, who were beaten, 6 to 0, last week at Cambridge, having a chance to win the series by taking this game and also beating Harvard in New York Wednesday, when a resulting tie would be played off.

Although Princeton could not hit Hartford on Soldiers Field and Harvard batted White hard, there is considerable confidence that Drews, Princeton's left-hander, will be at his best and that the Tigers will be able to connect with Hicks, who has been announced to pitch for the Cambridge nine. There also appears to be a chance that Coach Cosgrove will give Cunningham a chance to pitch, should things go wrong with Drews, but in any event, it seems hardly likely that White will be used at all.

The Harvard team arrived here this morning from Pottstown, Pa., where the players were quartered for the night. Both teams will present the same lineup as at Cambridge last week, with the exception of the pitchers. Captain Currier's hand will allow him to play for Harvard. The umpires will be Betts of Washington and Truby of the National League.

HUGO KELLY IS TO QUIT PRIZE RING

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Hugo Kelly is broken in spirit, and threatens to quit the ring forever. Kelly is not downcast because he feels he is a "has been," for he denies this emphatically, but he has lost heart because ill luck follows him in all of his encounters. He declares that in his fight with Ketchel he was caught off guard just as the battle was going his way, that he broke his hand in one of his battles with Papke, and that on Saturday the wet canvas was responsible for his slip, which offered Papke an opening to put in the fatal blow.

"I do not know just what I will do," said Kelly to-day, "but I feel that I will retire from the ring forever. I have a tidy bit of money, a nice place at Antioch, and I think I can retire.

"The canvas was wet and slimy. The club had the ring sprinkled with rosin, but it couldn't work out the effects of the mist and damp of the morning. I guess I must have stepped in a wet spot and then went down.

"I wasn't in distress when Papke was slamming punches into my guard. He was shoving me about the ring a bit, but wasn't hurting me. But he caught me off guard and when he hit me on the jaw the jolt I got when my head struck the canvas knocked me out. I had exactly the same experience when I met Ketchel. Papke couldn't put me out in Milwaukee when I broke my arm in the second. It wasn't his punches that did the trick."

DATES OF POSTPONED GAMES

NEW YORK, May 22.—The postponed games yesterday of the National League will be played off on the following dates: New York-Pittsburg, August 24; Brooklyn-Cincinnati, July 10; Philadelphia-St. Louis, July 14.

Notes of the Doves' Game

Firmer grip on last place.

* * *

Third last game of series to-day.

* * *

Second application of the whitewash brush in the last three days.

* * *

The Cubs were lucky when they scored the run in the first inning. Dahlen's error, a free base and a sacrifice did the work.

* * *

Overall had a chance to cinch his own in the fourth inning as the Doves made a couple of errors and the bases were full with two down, but Over's best was a strike-out.

* * *

Dahlen's slowness in fielding Schulte's hit to second in the seventh inning allowed Schulte to land at first safely.

* * *

Moran slapped out a home run in the sixth inning, which gave the Cubs two more tallies. The ball was just a few feet on the inside of the foul line.

* * *

Of the two hits gotten off of Overall, Dahlen's was very scratchy. The other, made by Sweeney was clean.

* * *

With all the heavy batting the Cubs did, the game was a rapid one, owing to Doves going down so quickly. It took one hour and forty minutes for the nine innings.

* * *

Starr fanned three out of four times at bat.

* * *

Beck played a star game at first, accepting several difficult chances.

* * *

Sheckard's double and Moran's homer were the only extra base hits of the game.

Hofman was the only Cub to score two runs.

* * *

Just to show that they could, the Cubs put over two counters in the last inning. Three hits and a pair of misplays caused the damage.

* * *

Sweeney entered the "error" column twice.

* * *

Overall fanned eight Doves. Mattern fooled five of the visitors.

* * *

Dahlen got one hit out of one official time at bat. He drew two bases on balls.

* * *

It was no-hit, no-run for six innings.

* * *

Beaumont let Moran's single get through him and roll to the fence. "Patsy" got three bases on it.

* * *

Joe Stanley was put off the coach line at the very start of the game by Umpire Klem.

* * *

For that home run, Moran gets a pretty bunch of stuff. A hat a pair of shoes and five pounds of tobacco, all these being offered by leading Boston firms.

* * *

Mattern was touched up for eleven hits.

* * *

The Doves' batting averages fell considerably.

* * *

Overall and Mattern fanned twice each.

* * *

Evers and Zimmerman were the only Cubs who did not get a hit.

* * *

One, two, three order for the Doves in four rounds.

Baseball News and Notes

Art Mullin, brother of George, and a pitcher in the Southern League, is dead.

* * *

Pat Livingston, who aided Indianapolis to win the pennant in the American Association last year, is one of the catchers recently signed by Connie Mack. He is with the Athletics.

* * *

Flint, Mich., has a pitcher named Roach. The hostile batsmen carry insect powder for that cuss.

* * *

There is a shortstop named Clearhead up in the Wisconsin League. Some of the big league teams could use this fellow if his playing matches his monaker.

* * *

Lennox of Brooklyn and Gleason of the Phillies have been restored to good standing by Acting President Heydler. Welcome back, "Kid."

* * *

Acting President Heydler of the National League does not intend to give the players any leeway. He is on the war path and the public will support him in his demand for good order on the diamond.

* * *

Johnny Evers, a member of the A. O. H., and Pat Moran take issue with Colonel John I. Rogers. The Cubs' players think the green paint at Philadelphia Park makes a very artistic effect.

* * *

George Stone is out for top honors in smiling again. He is the real swat leader in the American League at present, with an average of .357. Carrigan and Speaker of the Bostons are pushing him hard, however, with .356 and .341, respectively.

* * *

George Mullin sure is doing some grand twirling for the Tigers. He hasn't lost a game this season. Cicotte of the Red Sox is close on his trail, however. Cy Young has won three and lost three, while Chech, for whom Cleveland gave Cy, has won five out of seven struggles.

* * *

Camnitz is the leading twirler in the National League at present, having won six straight games, two of them being shutouts. Rucker is playing in hard luck, having won but a single game in four. The Dodgers have played very poor ball every time Nap has started. Each time he has pitched great ball, but Dame Fortune has not favored him a bit.

* * *

Jim Delehanty has been restored to good standing at the Cleveland Park, after being punished for using foul language there. Chloride of lime will be kept handy to fumigate the air in case Jim breaks loose again.

* * *

Man over in Red Bank, N. J., has been awarded the eating championship because he got away with nine plates of ice cream, five pies and a dozen bananas in one hour. That would be only a starter for some ball players.

* * *

Swacina, the former Pittsburg first baseman playing for Harrisburg, is fielding well, but his sticking does not amount to anything. Swacina has been guilty of dirty baseball playing a couple of times this season.

* * *

One day last Summer Rube Waddell's index finger was split by a liner. After a surgeon dressed the member Rube asked, "Do you think I will be able to play the piano now, doctor?" "Yes," was the reply. "Fine," returned Rube, "for that is something I was never able to do."

* * *

Fans in seven cities of the National League believe that a European trip this Summer is just the thing to restore Mike Donlin's health. And if Europe doesn't do him any good, he might try New Zealand, but keep on moving, Mike.

* * *

Owen Murphy of the Cubs lately released three men. As the day when the $10,000 will be distributed is fast approaching, it is not believed that there will be any protests from the Chances, Tinkers and Steinfeldts.

* * *

For a star ball player Ty Cobb has a singular disposition. He was ready to play on the opening day of the season.

* * *

Dummy Taylor can't say anything, but you can always tell when he doesn't agree with the umpire.

* * *

At third base Dave Brain covers just about as much ground as he can stand still on.

* * *

President Murphy of the Cubs will address the members of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a luncheon, at noon, June 23, on the subject, "How a Winning Ball Team Advertises a City." After the luncheon the association members will be President Murphy's guests at the game.

* * *

"Look out for a redhot pace in the National League this year," remarks Umpire O'Day. "Any of the second division teams is likely to tumble a leader any day."

* * *

When Mike Kelley of St. Paul sold Myers to the Giants he told McGraw that the Indian wasn't a very good catcher. There is no danger of Kelley getting him back the way the redskin is belting the ball.

Appleton, Wis., has the most sociable pitcher in the world. His name is Companion.

* * *

Chicago Cubs are negotiating for two Sunday games at Atlantic City. These trips to the City-by-the-Sea are enough to make even Johnny Kling turn in his signed contract.

* * *

Del Howard is proving a good substitute for Husk Chance as he is not only hitting well but his first base play has been more than satisfactory.

* * *

Cincinnati has fifteen pitchers and Manager Griffith is believed to make his twirling selection by picking the number out of a hat.

* * *

Frank Chance's injury is not as bad as it might have been. The broken bone is in his left shoulder. Frank can still sign his pay check with his right hand.

* * *

Pat Moran vigorously denies a rumor that he had been killed. Pat says the ice has not yet been manufactured that will freeze his corpse.

* * *

President Taylor of the Boston Americans says every State in the Union will sanction Sunday baseball in the course of a few years. Philadelphians look for their favorite sport on the Sabbath the instant councils permit bull fighting in Independence square.

* * *

Andy Coakley, the former Cincinnati and Chicago pitcher, who was recently released by the Cubs to Louisville, has returned to his home and is willing to twirl for semi-professional teams in Greater New York. Coakley will hereafter practise dentistry, but will keep his hand in as a twirler by playing with strong teams on Saturdays and Sundays.

* * *

Thirteen is the Phillies' hoodoo, not their lucky number, as Secretary Shettsline claims. The Quakers lost their thirteenth game of the season; they were defeated on May 13, and they were shut out in their thirteenth game at home.

* * *

Comes the word that Monte Cross, deposed manager of the Kansas City team of the American Association, will go with the Cleveland American League team. If he does not go there he is carded to go to the Indianapolis team of the Association.

* * *

There is about as much resemblance between that crowd Connie Mack has this year as there is between a thoroughbred and a dray horse.

* * *

Now comes the gladsome tidings that McGraw and Chance shook hands while in New York. It's a pretty safe bet that each held a bat with the hand not clasped in hearty greeting.

* * *

Jimmy Collins is proving good to the old-timers. He has landed Mike Kahoe and Charley Dexter for Minneapolis.

* * *

After Lennox has been in the league longer he will hear more of "Kid" Gleason. The "Kid" is the only ball player in the big leagues who is a grandfather. And he can fight his way through any scrap ever started.

* * *

Marquard begins to look more and more like $11,000. With a little hitting behind him he would have won about every time so far this season.

* * *

Theodore Breitenstein, who burned up the big league a few years ago, is said to have lost his cunning. He is with the New Orleans team of the Southern League and was the best pitcher in the organization last year. This year he has won but one out of three games.

* * *

John Weimer, brother of Jake of Cub fame, is one of the greatest hitters in the Southern organization. He also is with the New Orleans team and seldom does a day pass that he does not sting out a double.

* * *

Captain Bob Ganley of the Senators says that the Sox are the greatest "waiters" in the business, and win many games for that reason. "They never strike at a bad ball," said the Washingtonian. "As a result a pitcher has to throw more balls to them than to any other club in the league, and he is tired when the latter innings are reached. He loses his control and effectiveness, and the Sox get to him."

* * *

One put out is unusual for a first baseman in a nine-inning game. Yet this is the record of First Baseman Rohn of Atlanta in a game against the Birmingham team.

* * *

They hand out some weird baseball news in Pittsburg. According to an exchange, the latest in the smoky town is that they may take Hans Wagner out of short and put him in the outfield. This might be all right if the only job held by Wagner were shortstop. But Wagner, all in holding down the keystone berth, is about one-half of second base, two-thirds of third base, and a fraction of centre and leftfield besides.

HARVARD AND YALE FRESHIES IN FIELD MEET

Yale Freshmen are slightly the favorites in the meet with the Harvard Freshmen this afternoon in the Stadium, on account of the fact that the Eli youngsters are particularly strong in the field events.

The Yale Freshies count on taking all the field events except the hammer throw, in which the Crimson yearlings are particularly strong, and expect to give the Harvard Freshies a hard fight in the track events.

Knox, captain of the Andover track last year, will be pitted against Ranney in the quarter mile. Ranney has been running in fine form all the year, while Knox has not shown up well yet.

The Yale Freshies will probably win the pole vault with Captain Gardner, who broke the record in the pole at the interscholastic meet last year, entered in this event. In the half-mile, Mullens, who ran on the Yale Freshmen relay team at the B. A. A. indoor meet, will compete with Fernald, the Crimson's candidate.

With Lacey entered in the mile run and Billings and Cummin in the 100-yard dash, the Crimson youngsters claim these events. The hurdles are more in doubt on account of the fact that Chisholm, Exeter's crack hurdler last year who scored in the interscholastics, is among the prominent Elis who will compete in this event. Parker and Dupont will uphold the honor of the Harvard Freshies in the hurdles.

Both track teams have been beaten this season, the Yale Freshies badly by the Princeton Freshies and the Harvard Freshies by Exeter. The Crimson Freshmen, however, have defeated Andover.

SANDY FIGHTS JOE JEANNETTE

PARIS, May 22.—Sandy Ferguson, the Boston heavyweight, and Joe Jeannette, the New York colored heavyweight, will fight twenty rounds here to-night. The bout was postponed from last Saturday at Ferguson's request, as he wanted more time to get right. The winner will be challenged by Sam Langford, who expects to whip Iron Hague, the British heavyweight champion, in London next week. Johnson can also have a fight with the winner of to-night's mill next August for a $20,000 purse and a $10,000 side bet if Jack will agree to a finish contest. But it's even betting now that Johnson will not indulge in a mill with anybody until he meets Ketchell.

DOVES MAY GET FIELDER FROM YANKS

NEW YORK, May 22.—Four National League clubs have laid claim to Infielder Joe Ward of the New York Americans, on whom waivers have been asked. President George B. Dovey of the Boston Nationals has the best chance to get him, it is thought, provided Manager Stallings does not recall the waivers.

DR. HALLOCK'S
Famous Remedies
CURE TO STAY CURED

All acute and chronic diseases and weaknesses from whatever cause arising. Nervous and physical debility, nervous exhaustion, exhausted vitality, nervous, weak, wornout feeling, weak, aching back, lack of strength, energy or ambition, bad dreams, poor memory, bashful, restless at night, despondent. A single treatment proves the invigorating qualities of our remedies; gives strength, courage and reserve nerve power; will accomplish what all weak men desire. Kidney weakness, bladder and urinary complaints, rupture, piles, fistula, gravel, scalding, painful inflammation cured permanently; blood and skin diseases in all forms, pimples and blotches on the face, pains in the back and legs, treated at home without detention from business.

"WHERE SHALL I GO TO GET CURED?" many a sufferer asks, not knowing whom to trust. Go where thousands of others have gone and been restored to perfect health, the comforts of home and the enjoyment of society, to OLD RELIABLE HALLOCK INSTITUTE, located over 60 years at the corner of Court and Stoddard sts.

All lingering chronic diseases that have been neglected or have failed to yield to the treatment of less skilful hands soon get well under our superior treatment.

When suffering from diseases patients should seek advice from an expert whose experience and practice have taught him to apply promptly the proper remedy and quickly relieve the disease, thus avoiding the many months of treatment so common to the inexperienced and annoying and discouraging to the patient.

Everything is confidential. Call to-day, consultation is free. A written guarantee given to cure all curable cases for a stipulated fee, payable as patient is able.

Our medical book on all disease and weaknesses sent sealed free. Should be read by every man. Send for it to-day; you will be a better man by reading it. Hours daily 9 to 9, Sunday, 10 to 1.

DOVES LAY OFF ON ACCOUNT OF THE RAIN

The "No game to-day" sign was hung out by the management of the Boston National team this morning. The heavy rains and continued coldness made play impossible, and the Doves and Cubs will have to hook up in a double-header later in the season.

The Cubs will not leave Boston until midnight, when they will make tracks for the big town. They are scheduled to play an exhibition game to-morrow afternoon with the Elizabeth Stars of Newark, N. J., in which team Joe McGinnity is interested. Then on Monday they tackle the Trolley Dodgers in the first of a four-game series.

Manager Chance and Orvie Overall hiked for New York last night. The object of their trip is not known, but it is thought they are there to try to complete the trade of Reulbach for McIntyre of Brooklyn. Reulbach has been unusually wild this year, and after losing his game at Philadelphia recently Manager Chance ordered him to return to Chicago. Later the Cub boss countermanded this order. He will not use Reulbach until Ed can show some signs of control. Chance has wanted McIntyre for one of his slab artists for some time.

Pitchers Hagerman and Kroh of the Cubs are on the sick list. Kroh caught cold in Philadelphia and now is suffering with tonsilitis. Hagerman also contracted a cold and is tight and fast in bed with fever.

ELIOT GRAMMAR BEATS PHILLIPS

At the North End Park this morning the Eliot Grammar School played its first game of the year and defeated the Phillips Grammar School of the West End in a six-inning contest by the score of 9 to 4. Levenson, who pitched for the Eliots, allowed only three hits and fanned nine batters. The score:

		R.	H.	E.
Phillips	1 2 0 1 0	4	3	3
Eliot	1 2 2 2 x	9	6	2

COTE KNOCKS OUT M'CARTHY IN 8TH ROUND

Arthur Cote, the Maine lightweight, scored a decisive victory over Jimmy McCarthy, formerly of Chicago, at the Faneuil Hall A. C., knocking the ex-Windy city boy out in the eighth round.

It was announced that if both boys were on their feet at the end of the ten rounds the result should be declared a draw, but this did not suit Cote, who made sure of an award in his favor by putting McCarthy away.

The first two rounds were tame, both boxers feeling each other out, but in the third Cote began to come and landed a bunch of body wallops. The pace got warmer in the fourth round and McCarthy got after Cote with heavy rights and lefts, opening Cote's eye.

They slowed up a bit in the fifth and it was an even exchange. The speed began to buzz in the sixth, when Cote started away with a vengeance. He beat McCarthy to the mat, but the latter got to his feet and mixed with his sturdy foe. It was Cote in front in the seventh, and his constant banging on the body was beginning to show effect on McCarthy. A left hook on the jaw shook McCarthy to the crown of his head, and another stiff punch on the jaw put him in a bad way. Four times he went down, the bell coming to his rescue at the right moment.

Cote knew he had the advantage in the eighth and went out to cut the bout short. He shot a series of rights and lefts to the body, taking all the life out of McCarthy, and pushing him into a corner swung both hands to head and body, McCarthy crumbling before the onslaught and was counted out.

Mike Malia of South Boston won over Jimmy Sullivan, of the same burg, in the prelim six rounds and Jackie Williams of Cambridge went to a six-round draw with Freddie Chisholm of Everett, in one of the fastest mittfests ever seen at the club.

JACK DOHAN COMES FOR MURPHY BOUT

Jack Dohan, the fast New York welterweight, will come over to-day to put on the edge to his training for his bout at Salem Monday night with Eddie Murphy, the tough South Boston boxer.

It was last week that Dohan came over and polished off Young Kenney at Lawrence, and he figures on doing the same thing to Murphy. Those who know the South Boston walloper and his bouts at the Armory A. A. have got well acquainted with him and believe that Dohan has Dick Nelson a couple of times, beaten Dick Nelson a couple of times beaten Young Kloby of Lawrence and Jeff Doherty, and fought no decision fights with Paddy Sullivan of New York, so he looks pretty good.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Packey McFarland may be seen in battle at Kansas City on May 27. Harry Gilmore, Jr., Packey's manager, announced that the lightweight has an offer to take on either Harry Trendall or Jimmy Devine. Gilmore said Promoter Coffroth of San Francisco had not settled definitely whether there was to be a Nelson-McFarland battle in the near future and that they had intended to go ahead with other plans.

* * *

Jack Goodman appears to be the one boy in the East who has a chance with Freddie Welsh. Jack has superior footwork, is just as fast and can hit. There may be a surprise at the Fairmont when they meet next Friday night.

* * *

Joe Thomas is in demand again. Joe has dates open at Pittsburg, Schenectady and New Haven. Frank Klaus pulled out of a Pittsburg match, but another suitable man will be looked for. Thomas and Harry Lewis may get the New Haven date this month.

* * *

Battling Nelson was handed his second knockdown of his career. He was having a friendly sparring bout with Eddie Graney, the referee, and the former blacksmith landed a wallop on Nelson's jaw that sent him prostrate. Bat was up laughing in an instant and continued to spar with his opponent. He managed to rush Graney about the ring in spite of the latter's tremendous excess in avoirdupois.

* * *

Matchmaker Jim McDonald of the East Avenue A. C. of Long Island City is negotiating for a match between Tommy Murphy and Johnny Frayne, the Westerner, to be held at the club next Saturday night. The match is practically assured, as the managers of both men have declared their willingness to have their charges battle. The boys will fight at the lightweight limit for ten rounds.

* * *

Willie Lewis and Joe Jeannette, the American fighters who have won every fight they have engaged in so far in France, will sail from England May 29, on the steamship Lusitania for this country. They will be accompanied by their manager, Dan McKetrick. Jeannette fights Sandy Ferguson at Paris on Saturday night, while Lewis will meet Andrew Soptha, the English heavyweight at London on next Monday night.

* * *

The betting on the recent Papke-Kelly fight would indicate that there was something doing, but the battle speaks for itself. No fighter ever faked and took the same walloping Kelly took Saturday in going out. Kelly left Frisco for Chicago, and before leaving said he would retire from the ring unless he could get another chance at Papke or a go with some top notcher.

Results of Boxing Bouts

NEW YORK, May 22.—Freddie Welsh, the crack English lightweight, gave Jack Goodman a severe drubbing in their ten-round bout at the Fairmount A. C. and outclassed the local boy in every round. Welsh was there with the ring generalship, speed and knowing how to make his opponent lose time and strength. The terrible right swing that was nine-tenths of Goodman's repertoire was sadly missing. The Britisher would never give Goodman an opportunity to get the haymaker in order.

MEMPHIS, May 22.—Johnny King beat Tommy Dixon in eight rounds.

* * *

SAVANNAH, May 22.—Dick Miller of New York knocked out Bob Slavin of California in four rounds.

* * *

MONTREAL, May 22.—Napoleon Dufresne of Lewiston won the decision over Lynch of Quebec at Sohmer Park after 15 hard rounds.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Matty Baldwin of Boston, outboxed and outfought Young Nitchie of Kensington, at the Nonpareil A. C., Nitchie received considerable punishment.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Arthur Connelly outpointed Young Fitzsimmons at the Olympic stag in 10 rounds. Griff Jones beat Al King. Joe Garinis stopped Ed Smith in the first round. Kid Farmer did the same to Harry Leonard and Johnny Murphy beat Paul Foster.

SENATORS EXPECT TO GET HUSTLE ON SOON

Here is a pretty good explanation of the Washington's slump from Manager Cantillon.

Joe says his players will be shooting the ball around the lot with accuracy and speed when the young fellows have blown up about the Fourth of July.

"Take all the shots that you want at me now," says Cantillon, "because you won't have any opportunity later. I'm no spring chicken in baseball. I've seen these teams come and go for some years. In the Spring, after you get a bunch of young players down South and bring them back to the North they are full of chicken and strawberries, and they circle around and pass out the grand right and left as if they had been dancing masters all their lives.

"About four weeks of that finishes them up, and when they are expected to have staying power and show the people that they are made of the real baseball material they blow up. I'll bet that the Washington Club is playing better ball the Fourth of July than some clubs I might mention at the present time."

NEW HORSES IN FELLSWAY MEET

Rowellan (2:09¾), the noted Grand Circuit campaigner for several seasons, and Major M., which has been winning all his starts this year at Charles River Speedway, are a couple of the horses making their debut in the Fellsway Driving Club races at Combination Park, Medford, this afternoon, when ten classes, containing upward of fifty entries, will be decided.

Secretary Frank Morrison, having turned his pacing mare Decima Deane (2:13¼) over to Knapp Forshner to train and drive, his wish of once more being permitted to contest with the invincible trotter Axtelloid (2:15¼) for the honors, resulted in the race committee bringing the two together, with Ned Wilkes as the third factor in the result.

Guy F. (2:15¼) will tackle the two mares Bonnie Belle and Belle Sherwood, in the fast race of the day. Interest is aroused in this event through Bonnie Belle stepping her heat last week in 1:05¼ to beat Belle Sherwood, the admirers of Guy F. having confidence he has the speed to take the measure of his opponents.

A race for the dinners is slated between Pat L., Edith R., Billy Bashford, Snyder McGregor, Billy Mack and Kitty L. The owners of these pacers have been anxious to decide the better wiggler for some time.

CRAWFORD OUT FOR HOME RUN PRIZES

Samuel Crawford of the Tigers had evidently lost something. He was searching through his coat pockets, his vest pockets and his trousers pockets.

"What's the matter, Sam?" asked Trainer Tuthill.

"I can't find my prize list."

"What prize list?"

"Well, before the season started I looked through the papers every night and made a list of everybody who offered a prize for the first home run of the season. I made one in that St. Louis series, just before we left on our last trip, and did not go around and collect the merchandise. I intended to do so when we got back, and now I have lost my list."

"Why don't you hit another home run and then they'll remember you sure and send those things around?" suggested Tuthill.

"Guess that's what I'll have to do," replied Samuel.

And that's what he did. The home run he knocked that afternoon was one of the longest hits ever made at Bennett Park. The ball rolled to the pennant staff.

BOBBY DRESSER TO PITCH.

Bobby Dresser, the well known local twirler, has been secured by Milford to pitch against Uxbridge in the Woonsocket Mill League game to-day. Clarence Barnes, the old Yale captain, will play in left field.

FARMERS ASK GOOD HIGHWAYS FOR THE NATION

By J. C. KERRISON.

The demand for good highways is general among the farmers of the entire United States. Education and good roads are the two things most frequently mentioned by farmers. The Country Life Commission in its annual report says: "We hold that the development of a fully serviceable highway system is a matter of national concern, co-ordinate with the development of waterways and the conservation of our native resources. It is absolutely essential to our internal development.

"The first thing necessary is to provide expert supervision and direction and to develop a national plan. All the work should be co-operative between the Federal Government and the States. The question of Federal appropriation for highway work in the United States may well be held in abeyance until a national service is provided and tested.

"We suggest that the United States Government establish a highway engineering service, or equivalent organization to be at the call of the States in working out effective and economical highway assistance. That highway improvement is the most important economic reform, has long been urged by the farmers, who, through their principal organization, the National Grange, have been persistently agitating for the adoption of a policy of Federal aid for good road construction and maintenance."

The annual outing for blind children will next month be repeated by the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, Secretary Chester I. Campbell now being busy arranging for the same. As in previous years Rev. M. R. Deming of the Boston Seashore Institute will be invited to co-operate with the dealers' association. The outing will probably be held the latter part of June, when the girls and boys from the blind institutes in this vicinity will be invited to go for a ride to Lake Massapoag.

* * *

The Boston Automobile Dealers' Association has voted to hold its 1910 motor show in March of next year. While the active work of preparing for the show will not be undertaken until late in the Fall Chester I. Campbell, who has again been designated as manager, will immediately prepare plans of spaces and accept informal applications for the same.

In making this decision the local association again shows its faith in the value of late shows which in the case of Boston have always been eminently successful.

The 1909 show was the most successful from a sales point of view ever held in Boston, and the members of the association are well satisfied with the results. The stimulus given the trade by the exhibition has not yet disappeared; in fact, the local dealers not infrequently receive inquiries about cars or make sales which they are able to trace directly to the show two months ago.

The performance of the Empire tires in the recent Harrisburg reliability contest was of a particularly high order, and naturally pleasing to Manager Chadwick of the local branch, as well as to the officers of the home plant. Two Pullman cars were equipped with Empires, and according to all accounts they were the only two cars that went through the gruelling contest without any mishaps, punctures or blow out; in fact, they were faultless in their work, through the 700 miles of the hardest kind of hard going.

GREATEST TREASURE HUNT EVER KNOWN—Read it in the SUNDAY AMERICAN. More fascinating than any novel is this attempt to secure $120,000,000 of Spanish riches.

JAPANESE FIGHTERS ARE TO COME EAST

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—Fight fans of the East will soon have an opportunity of seeing two real Japanese boxers in action who can certainly handle themselves. The yellow boys are Young Oyama and Young Togo, 133 and 105 pounds, respectively. The Japs are planning an invasion of the East this Summer.

The Japs fight as do no other race in the world. Their principal asset is gameness, combined with only a fair amount of cleverness.

Oyama is the more clever of the two, and when he fights his saffron-colored skin contracts until it is drawn tight over the bones of the face, giving him the appearance of his Satanic majesty. Oyama is a perfect demon, never stopping from the time the bell sounds to start the fight until it is over.

Just the reverse is Young Togo. He fights with a continual grin of good nature upon his flat little face. He never appears to be serious, yet has a knack of winning battles. His first fight here nearly resulted in a riot. He was knocked down in the first round just ten times, yet, in the very next session, he came on and whipped his opponent, dropping him in the middle of the second.

The Japs will leave this city in a few days and expect to be gone about six months, traveling through the East and fighting in every city where there is a boxing club.

WHY HOUSES ARE HAUNTED—Professor Cesare Lombroso tells in the SUNDAY AMERICAN some unique conclusions based on his personal investigations.

YALE'S LUCK MAY CARRY HER TO VICTORY

Yale by its victory over Harvard in the dual meet last Saturday will undoubtedly rule a favorite in the intercollegiate meet in the Stadium, Soldiers Field, on next week. That meet boomed her stock way up in the air, for it showed that she has a lot of men who may be counted on to win seconds and thirds.

And yet it is not a cinch that outside of Captain Howe, in either or both of the hurdles runs, Yale will score a first place. There is a good chance that one of the Eli pole vaulters will win in that event or that two of them will be in a tie for first place but there is no certainty of it.

Kilpatrick also looks fairly good for the broad jump but he is not so sure even in that event for the reason the same gentleman who may upset the pole vaulters, Cook of Cornell, may upset him.

Spitzer has looked like a real good thing for the half mile but he's erratic and besides he will run against Beck of Pennsylvania, French of Cornell and possibly Paul of Pennsylvania.

Yale team's strength lies in its numbers and in the points to be picked up in the different events. She is pretty sure to count one point in the 220 yards run, score two points for third in the 440 yards run, with LaMontaigne at least three for second place in the half mile run, with Spitzer, two points in the two mile run for third place, five for winning the high hurdles with Captain Howe, at least three for second in the low with the same man, five points in the pole vault in a first or second and third, one for fourth in the shot, four points with Cooney, Goebel and Andrus in the hammer, at least three in the broad jump for second by Kilpatrick and two points in the high jump with either Canfield or Riley.

All in all this looks like a conservative estimate and would total 31 points, just enough to win the meet.

Of course there is a chance that the Elis will fall down in some events or that between Pennsylvania, Cornell and Michigan that the hopes will be blasted.

But the New Haven men make up a good scoring team. They showed good strength even without some of their strong men against Virginia and were formidable against Princeton. Yale defeated Harvard but Harvard is going to be stronger than in the dual meet for she will be strongest with individual point winners just as Pennsylvania was when she captured the meet two years ago and when Michigan with Garrels in three events did such remarkable performances in the hurdles and the shot.

HARVARD VERSUS BROWN FRESHMEN

With a record of but one defeat, the Harvard Freshmen will meet the Brown Freshmen this afternoon on Soldiers Field in the last home game before the Yale contest.

The Crimson youngsters expect a hard game, but are confident of pulling out with a victory on account of the fact that all the regulars will be in requisition. The game will afford somewhat of a comparison between the Harvard and Yale Freshmen, for the Yale Freshmen have beaten the Brown Freshmen by a close score.

Babson will start the box work for the Crimson Freshies, while Jones will begin the twirling for the Brown yearlings. Ernst, the old Dorchester High boy, will be in readiness to take Babson's place if the pace proves too strong, while Hennessey, Brown's star mound artist, will probably replace Jones.

Wigglesworth and Campbell will hold down centre garden for the Harvard Freshies alternately.

HORSEMEN'S RESORT IN NEW YORK CLOSED

NEW YORK, May 22.—"The Morgue," a cafe at the corner of Madison avenue and Twenty-seventh street, across from Madison Square Garden, where many a horse deal has been pulled off, and where horsemen were in the habit of congregating during the progress of the Old Glory and mid-winter sales, is now no more, an auction sale of the fixtures and contents having lately been held.

The cafe was given the above name by trotting horsemen who dropped in there, but it never resembled one, being always a bright and cheerful spot, especially after one had made two or three trips to it from the sale. It was owned by John and George Anderson, the former having died a few days ago from a complication of ailments.

JOE HANSEN HERE TO MEET SAM ANDERSON

Joe Hansen of Norwich, N. Y., is in town looking fit as a fiddle for his wrestling match with Sam Anderson at the Columbia Theatre to-night. These two men met a few weeks ago, and Hansen had the better of the argument, putting Anderson to the bad with the toe hold. Anderson has been trying ever since to get a return go with him, and declares that he will not get a look at his toe in the match to-night. It will be a finish catch-as-catch-can affair, winner take all, so it will be a "blood" match from the word go.

CICOTTE BECOMING FAMED.

Eddie Cicotte, who joined the Boston Red Sox last season, has already developed into one of the team's winning pitchers. In 1908 he pitched twenty-three games, winning eleven and losing twelve. He was taken out of five games and finished ten for other pitchers. This year he has had much better success.

Cicotte's entrance into the majors precipitated a storm of guesses as to the right way to pronounce his peculiar name. The almost universally accepted fashion was "Ci-cot-ty." Finally the player himself was appealed to, and he declared that his name was pronounced as if spelled See-cott.

ENGLISHMEN THINK HAGUE WILL BEAT SAM

By TAD.

NEW YORK, May 22.—"Ian" Hague, the Mexborough man who meets Sam Langford Monday night at the National Sporting Club in London, is the talk of the sporting world these days. Over in England they think that Hague has a lovely chance of trimming Samuel, and any number of bets at even money have been laid. Sam needs some more paint for that house up in Boston, and you can wager a few seeds that he will be there at his best with Hague, as a beating would put the latter out of the running for the title.

Hague stands six feet, weighs 180 pounds and is only twenty-four years old. "Ian" is a sort of nickname. When Hague went to school he used to punch brick walls for the amusement of the other lads, and they called him "Iron" Hague. His given name was William. After that a sporting writer called him "Ian," and he has held that name ever since.

His record, although a very short one, is well liked across the pond and includes wins over Jack Scales, Frank Craig, Charlie Wilson, Ben Taylor and Gunner Moir. Of his fifteen battles, seven ended in knockouts, and once he was knocked out himself by Charlie Knock in three rounds.

Photographs of Hague, which arrived here to-day, shows us a big, strapping fellow, something on the style of Frank Gotch, the world's champion wrestler. If he fights as well as he looks, the Londoners are going to see some fun Monday afternoon. Digger Stanley meets Jimmy Walsh in the preliminary of twenty rounds.

PHIL BROCK EXPECTS TO SURPRISE WELSH

It would be a big surprise if Freddie Welsh should be beaten when he meets Phil Brock, the Milwaukee boy, at the Armory A. A. next week, but that is the order of the ring. Since Brock lost a twenty-five-round decision to the Englishman at Los Angeles just a year ago he has persistently tried to corner Welsh for another chance.

The opportunity has come to him at last and he recently gave up a couple of good engagements in order to take on a contest with Welsh, who he considers the rival who stands between him and the top of the class.

The result of the last meeting between the pair warrants a bout with plenty of live stepping when the gong rings.

RED SOX PITCHER MAY GO TO ST. PAUL

MILWAUKEE, May 22.—Manager Mike Kelley of St. Paul is in Chicago for a conference with Manager Lake of the Boston Americans. The Boston club promised St. Paul a pitcher as part of the Wolter deal, during the winter. Lake up to this time has not decided whom he will send to St. Paul, but it looks like Pitcher Ryan, who was with Cleveland last year.

Ryan is a clever pitcher and Kelley figures that he will strengthen his pitching staff. Outfielder Hoey, formerly of Boston, is temporarily out of the game with injuries.

GALE MAY STOP RACE.

ANNAPOLIS, May 22.—A stiff northeast gale, which promises to last twenty-four hours and thereby delay the Syracuse-Navy boat race to-morrow, is blowing here this morning. The wind, which is driving a fine cold rain, knocked out all practice by both crews yesterday. If the storm blows away and it is calm the race will be started at 3:30 p. m.

Keeping Clean in Mind

It Is Quite as Important as Bodily Cleanliness

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

ARE you a cleanly person?

This question, quite possibly, you consider little short of an insult. Yet in this dusty, over-filled world, where we all go hurrying to and fro, "doing the needless things that the needless people do," as Zona Gales's poem expresses it, very few people keep themselves absolutely neat.

Cleanliness is said to be the virtue next to godliness.

Thousands of years ago the "Jainites" prided themselves upon being a very godly and religious people, but they were inexpressibly filthy.

They carried their ideas of the continuance of all life to such a degree that they considered it a sin to destroy a flea which annoyed them. As bathing the body was sure to disturb some insect, they did not bathe.

The ancient Romans carried bodily cleanliness to the extreme and left morality out of the question.

So the early Christians, anxious to be wholly unlike the immoral Romans, were not over-particular about cleanliness.

But modern science, which has proven that all plagues, and most all epidemics and many diseases, originate in dirt, makes cleanliness the necessary companion of godliness in this age.

Few People Are Absolutely Clean

And yet, despite all our luxurise and conveniences, few people are wholly and absolutely clean!

Hands, nails, scalp, ears, clothing, skin, are all dust catchers.

Not once a day, but many times a day, must person and garments be looked after and to some degree cleansed, if one keeps neat in the full meaning of the word.

And besides the exterior, the digestion and the teeth must be considered. No man or woman can be clean who does not visit the dentist twice a year.

Parents who neglect the teeth of their children are guilty of an irreparable wrong toward them. The habit a child forms in early years in the care of its person will show in maturity.

Teach your children to keep their teeth scrupulously clean as soon as these troublesome necessities appear, and you have conferred a blessing upon them and all their associates for a lifetime.

Again, the human being whose mind is a receptacle of gossip, distrust, ill temper and revenge is not clean, however dainty and spotless may be the exterior.

Beautiful Body Lacking Soul Is Mere Clay

A young woman who was like a "daily hint from Paris" in her attire, and who prided herself upon the perfection of her teeth [illegible] nails and hair and complexion, shocked a roomful of people by her irritable and disrespectful treatment of her mother and by her pessimistic conversation regarding the world in general.

She had no faith in human nature, and she shrugged her shoulders when any reference was made to life beyond the earth plane and one could not but regard her youthful body, with its expensive and fashionable garments, as a piece of cold clay, or a dressmaker's "dummy," devoid of all that goes to the making of beautiful womanhood.

Afterward she retailed disagreeable tales about people of her acquaintance, and I looked at her highly polished finger nails and glossy hair and dainty costume, and wondered if she realized that in spite of it all she was not clean!

The parents of the young are responsible here again for failure to teach children by example and precept to cultivate mental cleanliness.

How often do we hear older people tearing their neighbors to tatters in the presence of little children. If objection is raised by an intimate friend or relative, the reply is: "Oh, the children do not know what we are talking about."

Keep Children's Minds Clean

But children always know what older people are talking about. Parents and "grown-ups" are the models for childish ideals.

You are perhaps proud to think your children are faultlessly clean in their personal habits. But what example are you giving them in thought and conversation?

You would be horrified if it were suggested that your children carried contagious diseases to neighbors: that smallpox or leprosy originated with them: but how about gossip, scandal and neighborhood quarrels? Can such disease be traced to them?

In After Days

BY AUSTIN DOBSON.

IN after days when grasses high
O'er-top the stone where I shall lie,
Though ill or well the world adjust
My slender claim to honored dust.

I shall not question or reply.
I shall not see the morning sky;
I shall not hear the night-wind sigh;
I shall be mute, as all men must
In after days!

But yet, now living, fain were I
That someone then should testify,
Saying—"He held his pen in trust
To Art, not serving shame or lust."
Will none?—Then let my memory die
In after days!

What the Old Oak Tree Knows—By Beatrice Fairfax

'When sweethearts of to-day steal out to the old tree to talk delicious nothings, they are surrounded by a shadowy band of sympathizers'

ONCE upon a time a tiny acorn lay upon a bed of green velvety moss.

"What's the use of trying to amount to anything," it sighed discontentedly. "Here am I just a little, silly, unimportant nut; I shall never, never grow to be a tree." And it burrowed its naughty head deep into the mossy bed, which was just the very best thing it could have done, though it did not know it.

And all that was many, many years ago, and where the discontented little acorn once bemoaned its fate there now stands a great splendid oak tree. Its gnarled branches, like giant arms, reach toward the sky and spread on every side like a fragrant benediction, and it knows—ah! what doesn't it know, that old oak tree.

And many years ago a lover and his lass held tryst beneath its kindly shade, and ever since the fragrance of that dead and gone courtship has lingered about the old oak.

A Shadowy Band of Sympathizers

Around its gnarled old trunk there runs a circular seat put there by some one with a kindly eye to sweethearts and their ways.

When the evening shadows fall and the sweethearts of to-day steal out to talk all the delicious and highly important nothings that go to make a courtship, they are surrounded by a shadowy band of sympathizers.

To the right of them sits a dainty maid in milled skirt and Dolly Varden puffs, and at her feet there kneels a gallant lad in powdered queue and satin "smalls."

And on the left a stately lady listens to the impassioned tale of a dashing cavalier.

Ghosts? Yes, but ghosts of bygone romance, which never really dies but sheds its fragrance down all the years of love and eternity.

When the flesh and blood sweethearts agree all the shadows clap their hands softly and murmur: "Ah, that is as it should be with true love; peace and harmony should reign." But when they disagree the shadows shake their heads and cry: "Ah, why do they quarrel, these two foolish young things; don't they know that life is too short and love too sweet to mar it by bickerings and unkindness?"

Through it all the old tree listens and shakes its branches in dismay or delight. It has seen so many sweethearts and listened to so many quarrels and reconciliations.

It Has Heard the Old, Old Story

If it could speak it might say: "I ought to know all about these foolish young people, for I listened to the same talk from their ancestors, but you never can tell with sweethearts; they quarrel without reason and they make up in the same way."

But the old tree is happy, for it has learned a great deal and it has faithfully kept the secrets of its young friends.

So you see the little acorn amounted to something after all; it lived to be a faithful friend and confidant and to be a kindly, gracious refuge to those seeking shelter.

And what is very important—it learned how to keep a secret, for it has never whispered one word of all the many love stories that it has heard.

THE JOURNAL OF A NEGLECTED WIFE

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

December 22d.

HE has gone. I do not know where, or when he will return.

Last night at midnight a telegram came. There was a loud ring at the door; the maids had gone to bed, but the light still burned in his room. I heard him go downstairs.

Half an hour later he knocked at my door. When I opened it he stood there with a small satchel in his hand. He was very pale.

"A telegram has just come that calls me out of town at once. I may have to be away several days. You will not be worried?"

There was something like an appeal in his voice; something that seemed to ask me to help him—to make it easier. Almost unconsciously I responded:

"No—no; I will not be worried."

Then I heard the front door close after him. I was alone. Alone—more alone than I had ever been before.

Had he gone to her? Why had she sent for him at midnight? When would he come back? Would he come back at all?

All the long night I wandered from room to room through that silent house. In the hall I found the yellow envelope of the telegram, but it told me nothing. It bore only the address.

He had not made even a pretense of an excuse; he had not tried to say it was a business matter. He had said nothing.

December 24th.

TWO days and no word. I know now that nothing I suffered while he was here could equal this anguish of the unknown.

December 25th.

STILL no word. I am waiting quiveringly for every sound of the bell and telephone. How strangely the holly wreaths look in the windows across the way! Can this be Christmas?

December 27th.

He has come back.

Midnight.

HOW can I put the last twenty-four hours into words? Will it help me if I can?

Last night as I wandered about the house, as I have done every night since he left, I chanced to go downstairs. From under the library door shone a light. I was not frightened. I knew he was there.

A great joy flooded through me. He had come back; nothing mattered but that. And then very softly I knocked at the door. There was no answer. I turned the knob. It was not locked.

He was sitting before his desk, his head bowed on his folded arms. He must have heard me cross the room, but he did not look up. Gently I touched his shoulder; even then he did not move.

"Horace!" My voice rang out with a sudden fear. Then, for a moment, he raised his head. It was the face of my husband, but it was blanched and drawn almost beyond recognition.

I groped my way from the room. For hours I sat huddled on the stairs. The only feeling of which I was clearly conscious was a longing to be near him. No sound came from the library. After a while the clock in the hall struck three—a deep, muffled sound. And again that tense stillness settled over the house.

At dawn once more I crept down to the library and opened the door. His head was still on his arms, and I knew that in all these hours he had not moved.

Still, without speaking, I went over and knelt beside him. If he would let me stay there—if he would only let me stay! And then for the first time I noticed the bright steel of a revolver on the desk before him. With a cry of horror I caught it up. He raised his head.

"No, I have fought that all out. You need not be afraid." And then, in a voice that was almost cold: "She died yesterday at the hospital. The child died with her."

January 16th.

I AM going to stay. I am going to stay because he needs me.

I cannot write of these last two weeks. But I have lived them; they are past. And life can hold nothing now from which I would shrink. I believe I could walk unflinchingly on red-hot coals; that I can suffer no more.

After that night in the library he went away. He has gone five days. I do not know where. But I knew he had gone to be alone with his grief.

Sometimes I pictured him by her grave. But I shall never know.

We will never speak of that again. No word of reference to what has been will ever pass between us.

Before he came back he sent me a letter, and I knew then it was the only statement he would ever make. The letter I destroyed, but every word is burned in my memory:

> I have no explanations to make now or ever. Of my own weakness, of my unfaithfulness to you and cruelty to her, you must think what you will. I do not offer it as an excuse when I say that in all these years there was never any one else—that you know.
>
> She knew that, too—it was all she had. I loved her. That I did not love her enough to shield her from myself, I shall suffer for as long as I live.
>
> It sounds like mockery to say I loved you, too; and yet for you I sacrificed her. Could I have been with her through all these months I believe she would not have died.
>
> For two days before the last she was delirious, and had I never known before the strength and purity of her love for me, I would have known it then. From the beginning the fault was mine—all mine. She did not know that I was bound, until it was too late.
>
> You may wonder why, when I have tried to keep this from you all these months, I should tell you now when it can do no good. I can only say that something stronger than any volition of my own forces for me to acknowledge to you now the love that, for your sake, I tried to deny while she lived.
>
> I expect nothing but that you will leave me. Your legal freedom is yours for the asking. Half of everything I have has been put in your name. This I did months ago. The income will be more than sufficient for your needs.
>
> But should you feel that you could stay—or that some day you could come back.
>
> I have nothing to offer you except the ghost of our former life, and yet the future would not seem quite so blank if I felt that you were still with me.
>
> I have relinquished all right to your love, even to your pity. But if there is any hope left in me, it is the hope that you will stay.

(THE END.)

For the Moment

By HUGH O'NEILL.

BRAVING the possibility of another storm we greet the new season. In many orchards the hesitating buds burst yesterday to blossom on the trees. Closed doors and lighted windows have given place on the streets of householders to dark halls and porches occupied by families and friends. Between this Summer and that of last year some of us may have passed through much sorrow, and stopped, perhaps, to mark the resting place of one who could go with us no further on the road. Before us now the way may be quite clear, or dim in the mists of doubt and trouble, but there is that in the promise of new flowers, the sense that the earth is instinct with fruitful life, which brings a kind of spiritual revival none the less holy because of their material source. Good health, the opportunities for useful labor, a dollar ready in the time of need, a promise of friendly weather, these are sufficient for the mood that comes with May.—Denver Post.

Sights of the Sea

By Wex Jones

'TWAS the bosun's mate who did relate
This tale of the boundless deep,
And while he swore 'twas the truth, no more,
You may find it a little steep.

WE was sailin' (says he) o'er a sparklin' sea,
With the wind on our starboard beam;
We'd a cargo of crabs, which the skipper he nabs
By feedin' 'em full of ice cream,
Which of course made 'em freeze from their eyes to their knees
So stiff they were helpless from cold,
When we gathers 'em in with buckets of tin
And shoots 'em down into the hold.

EXCEPTIN' a riot the voyage was quiet, as quiet as ever I see;
But you know the old psalm says storm after ca'm,
And somethin' was doin', b'gee!
We springs quite a leak, and we pumps for a week,
But the water kept comin' in fast;
We loosens each seam, and we turns on our beam
And loses the cook and a mast.

BUT interest I stifles, relatin' such trifles,
So I'll tell you the wonder I seen—
We was nearin' the land, as a boy'd understand,
As blue water was turnin' to green.

NOW I've saw a sperm whale dance a jig on his tail,
And sea serpents as long as a train;
And I've witnessed a shark try to fly for a lark,
But such items as these appears vain—
For, as sure as you're born, one beautiful morn,
As I comes for a spell up on deck,
I sees round the ship, like a zoo on a rip,
A giraffe swimmin' up to his neck.

TO the bloomin' horizon, every spot I sets eyes on
Has some animals paddlin' like mad—
On the elephant's trunk was ridin' a monk,
And a zebra was towed by a shad;
The hippo with glee plunged on through the sea,
And the gnu navigated his way,
And the lofty giraffe would make a cat laugh
As he kicked up the water in spray.

"WHAT'S up," I remarks, "that you imitates sharks,
As away from your country you roams?"
"We're tryin'," says a jumbo, "to escape Bwana Tumbo,
And find in some safer land homes."

"'TWAS a wonderful sight," says my friend, "blow me tight,
If the sea ain't a marvellous place"—
I couldn't reply, but my paralyzed eye
Saw no sign of a blush on his face.

WANTED TO PATCH IT UP

Widow Casey—Ah, Mr. Dolan, when my old man died it left a big hole in my heart."

BOSTON SOCIETY By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

To-day is a busy one for society, for aside from the departure from town for week-end house parties, the foxhound, barrier and beagle show are held at the Alexander Higginson estate at South Lincoln, and the almost innumerable out-of-town weddings there is that in town of Miss Elizabeth Loring, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Stanton D. Loring of Marlboro street and Thomas Nestor, Jr.

The ceremony takes place at the Loring residence at 4 o'clock and is followed by a small reception. The Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, assisted by the bride's brother, the Rev. Robert F. Loring of Iowa City, officiates.

Miss Loring, who is one of the most popular girls of her exclusive set and a beauty of no little note, wears an empire gown of embroidered white satin and an old point lace veil fastened with orange blossoms.

Her only attendants are two little flower girls, Miss Elizabeth Loring of Brookline and dainty little Elizabeth Watson. One is dressed in white over pale blue and the other in white over pale pink. Charles R. I. Merrick is the best man and the ushers are Homer Loring of Brookline, William C. Loring of Providence, Weld A. Rollins of Boston and Abbott E. Kent of New York.

At the conclusion of their bridal tour Mr. and Mrs. Nestor will take up their abode in West Newton, where they will be ready for callers at No. 15 Fountain street on Thursdays, October 21 and 28.

* * *

All the Thorndike connection and numerous other Boston fashionables have gone over to Baltimore to attend the wedding there to-day in St. David's Church of Miss Elizabeth Wyatt Wise and Josiah Mack of New York, brother of Mrs. Richard Thorndike of Marlboro street, who was married in New York about a year ago.

Miss Wise's only attendant is her sister, Mrs. John Frick, who is to be her matron of honor. Alfred Macy is his brother's best man, and Mr. Frick, who is Mr. Macy's business partner, is among the ushers. A reception at the Wise mansion on Roland avenue follows the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Macy will make their home in Morristown, N. J.

* * *

Fashionables of the sport loving contingent are out in numbers for the annual foxhound, harrier and beagle show on the beautiful South Lincoln estate of Alexander Higginson.

Henry G. Vaughan and Mr. Higginson are in charge of the show. Cups for English hounds are offered by Mr. Higginson, Francis P. Sears of the Middlesex Hunt, Major Austin Wadsworth, Mr. Lowry of the Westchester Hunt, Charles Radnor of the Radnor Hunt of Philadelphia and Malcolm Stevenson of the Hempstead, L. I., colony.

* * *

A wedding to-day of much interest to Boston is that in San Francisco of Philip Young of this city and Miss Ella Bender of San Francisco. The bride-elect is said to be one of the most attractive girls on the Western coast and a decided social favorite in her home city. Her sister, Cherry Bender, has just returned from Honolulu and is among the attendants.

After a short honeymoon Mr. Young will bring his bride to Boston, where they will make their future home.

* * *

It is said that Bishop McVickar of Rhode Island, on account of illness, has decided to cancel all his engagements in the diocese and spend the season with his sister, Miss McVickar, at his country residence at Beverly, Mass.

* * *

Dr. Seward Webb has just returned from a short visit with Mrs. Webb and Miss Webb, who have been spending the past few months abroad, most of the time travelling about with the James Lawrences of Groton and Boston.

Mrs. Webb and her daughter will return next Thursday and the family will then go to their country place at Shelburne, Vt. The Lawrences will also return shortly will be for the Summer at their estate at Islesboro.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Whitside (Ethel Stockton), whose wedding took place at St. Paul's Church last Monday, were yesterday registered at the Gotham in New York.

Other Bostonians in New York were Lincoln Grant, who registered at the Waldorf Astoria, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Peabody, who were at the Belmont.

Taking Her Seriously

Percival Had a Masterful, Convincing Way

By Kennett Harris

PENELOPE was in a serious and thoughtful mood when Percival entered the room. Her beautifully rounded little chin was resting on a plump palm, and the arch was all out of her eyebrows, such was the intensity of her thought.

She aroused herself with a perceptible effort to greet the young man, in spite of his indicated intention of quietly retreating.

"It's a shame!" said Percival. "It's worse than that. It's a crime. I wouldn't have done it for a farm if I had known."

"Percival," said Penelope, "I wish you would try not to be so rough. Now, just look at my hair!"

"It's a joy to look at," Percival declared. "I could sit and admire it all day long. Let me see what that is on your cheek. No? I think you are the most suspicious person I know. Haven't I a right to see what's on your cheek, anyway?

"But I am genuinely sorry that I blundered in and broke up that little, unconscious pose. It was the prettiest thing you ever saw. Don't you think you could manage it again, sweetheart?"

"Don't be absurd, darling," said Penelope.

"What are you sitting in that chair for?" asked Percival. "There isn't going to be room for me there."

This Talk Must Really Be Serious

"I don't intend that there shall be," replied Penelope, serenely, and pointing; "you sit down there. No, you needn't draw it any nearer. It's quite close enough. I want to talk seriously to you."

"So seriously that it's going to take two separate chairs? Well, anything you say, but don't let it take too long. Remember, I haven't seen you since last night."

"Percival, dear," said Penelope, "I've been thinking."

"Don't you do it," advised the young man. "The next thing you know, you'll be demanding the ballot. Stop it before it gets to be a habit!"

"I must say you are complimentary," said Penelope, with a slightly offended air.

"Don't mind me! That's just my feeble effort at wit," said Percival. "It's about as near as I can ever get to it, so you must be patient. What have you been thinking about, little one?"

"You and myself."

"I don't see anything wrong with that," said Percival. "Of course, you might find better things to think about than yours devotedly, but I like to think that you do think about me, at that."

"I've been wonderinging if—if we hadn't made a mistake."

"I'm always making 'em," said Percival, "but it can't last forever, and I guessed right so hard when I took a chance on you that I could afford never to pick another winner, as it were. So you think that perhaps we'd better abandon the idea of a suburban home?"

What are you talking about?" said Penelope. "Who said anything about a suburban home?"

"I thought that we had half decided upon the fresh-air-elbow-room mode of existence?" answered Percival, timidly. "Well, if it wasn't that we were mistaken about what were we mistaken about, and why, and isn't it pretty near time we quit talking seriously?"

"You haven't allowed me to begin yet," said Penelope. "I was wondering if we hadn't made a mistake in getting engaged to each other. I've been thinking about it a great deal, dear."

"And you want my opinion? That's right. Whenever you have any little doubts about anything, you come right to your own Percival and have your mind set at ease.

"The question before the house is, 'Did we make a mistake when we became engaged?' The answer is, "Nay: NOT on your life! I should say not! Mistake nothing!' And now don't let that foolish notion get into your pretty little head again."

Penelope sighed. "But we know so little about each other," she argued.

"I'll see if I can't manage to call a little oftener," said Percival. "There is something in that."

"You call quite often enough," said Penelope. "It isn't that. We really know nothing of each other's tastes, likes and dislikes."

But Percival Finished Strong

"Indeed?" said Percival. "I'll bet I can buy you thirty-one varieties of candy in thirty-one days and never make a single mistake. Honey-bird, I've sat up and burned midnight oil studying your likes and dislikes."

"You are an angel boy," admitted Penelope. "I know that. But——"

"Of course," said Percival, pushing out his lip, "if you feel that your sentiments toward me have undergone any change, I would be the last to hold you to the engagement. I would gladly release you."

"Gladly?" said Penelope, suspiciously.

"I mean, I would release you. You know what I mean."

"I presume that you mean what you say. I hope that I am equally generous, and you may consider yourself released from your engagement to me from this moment."

Penelope rose, the personification of chill dignity.

Percival got up, too. "We will finish this conversation sitting on the lounge together," he said, in a very decided tone. "I am sorry to have to use force, but——"

"Percival," said Penelope a few minutes later. "If anything did happen to break our engagement, I'd want to die."

Don't Bother With Any Particular Mothers' Day

If You Can't Make EVERY DAY Mothers' Day, Your Mother Isn't Very Much to Be Envied

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Some well meaning individual succeeded in adding to the number of peculiar American days "Mothers' Day." On this day, the human race is invited to wear a particular sort of flower in its buttonhole and to think about its mother with gratitude.

Any effort to recognise the gratitude that the world owes to mothers is a good effort. And we would not discourage the gentleman with the mothers' day idea, nor those that tramp on that day, with a flower and a "kind thought for mother." But, if the people of the country can't make EVERY DAY a day in which to honor mothers, there is something the matter with them and their appreciation of what the mothers do.

It would seem rather odd if the mothers of the land had one particular day which they called "Babies' Day." Suppose they did that, suppose they remembered the baby ONE DAY IN THE YEAR, and on that day walked around with a flower in their buttonholes. And suppose they forgot the baby the other three hundred and sixty-four days of the year. What would become of the babies and the human race?

Luckily for the world, every day is babies' day with the mothers, and when the babies grow up they ought to reverse the thing, and make every day a day in which to honor mothers, and womanhood—BY FAR THE BEST HALF OF THE HUMAN RACE.

A good idea is often expressed humorously in America. We congratulate the newspaper man—or woman—that wrote for the Atchison Globe the "mothers' day" sarcasm which we publish here. There is a good deal of truth in it, unfortunately.

DAYSEY MAYME HONORS MOTHER

(From the Atchison Globe.)

Saturday was Mothers' Day, and there are a few who were so busy they didn't observe it. But Daysey Mayme Appleton was not in that number; no, not she! Daysey Mayme arose early, and putting on her best clothes, ate a breakfast that Mother had prepared and then, leaving the dishes for Mother to do, walked to the greenhouse, where she invested in a dozen snow-white carnations. "Some may wear only one," said Daysey Mayme, "that being the badge selected for Mothers' Day, but I think Mothers can't be honored too highly, and will wear a dozen." Daysey Mayme paraded the streets till noon, when she went home, ate a dinner Mother had prepared, grumbling because it didn't suit her, and, then, after telling Mother how to iron her shirtwaists, went off to take a nap, leaving the dishes. Daysey Mayme felt guilty upon awakening. She had slept two full hours of a day that should have been spent in honoring Mother. She got up hurriedly and dressed and left the house again, wearing her dozen snow-white carnations, and to every friend on whom she called that afternoon she told how sweet, how uplifting and how noble it was to set aside a Mothers' Day, and how she intended to observe it as long as she lived. Daysey Mayme was invited out to supper, and when she got home at 10 that night Mother was still ironing shirtwaists. Dear Mother is slow," said Daysey Mayme to herself in her mirror, "but she is a Good Woman, and I am glad I have honored her all day." Then she went to bed, satisfied that one good day's work was done.

The Future Peace of Armenia

American property at Adana and elsewhere in the murder-swept district of Armenia is being patrolled by Turkish guards under pledge of protection.

This is good. But it is not enough.

The outrages that our people have undergone in Asia Minor have given us vested moral interests in that part of the world.

We are under moral obligation to see that wholesale murder, arson and rape shall not merely be intermitted. We must put a stop to the conditions out of which such monstrous things have grown.

The hearty good sense and human feeling of the people in mass must now get behind the car of cowardly diplomacy and push it along.

The Turkish provinces are in danger of becoming derelict—a common nuisance in the path of universal commerce.

America should take the lead—since leadership in the council of nations is so scandalously lacking—in planning out the guarantees of permanent peace in Armenia.

Success After Failure

Dante

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

THE Immortal Florentine was primarily a man of action, rather than of words; a politician and statesman, rather than a literary man and poet.

Inimitable as he finally became in the world of letters, his original bias was toward the world of politics and laws, diplomacy and statecraft.

Following the natural tendency of his mind, he entered politics early in life, and, working has way along up through the minor positions, we find him, at about the age of thirty, recognised as what might be called perpetual ambassador.

It is said that he was spokesman for Florence on as many as fifteen different foreign political missions.

By the time he was thirty-five years old he found himself holding the supreme office of his city, that of Prior or Chief Magistrate, a position that combined the weightiest responsibilities and highest honors of any office in the republic.

But Dante was born under an evil star, so far as his political aspirations were concerned, and he was destined to defeat almost before he had fairly made a start along the way of his choice.

Fifty years before his eyes saw the light of earth, his city began to be rent by the bloody feud between the Guelfs and Ghibellines. A noble youth of Florence of the name of Buondelmonti, engaged to marry a lady of the house of Amidei turned round and married a young woman of the house of Donati, and thus was started the war which made Florence a hell for more than a hundred years.

When Dante began his career, eighty years after the first blood was shed in this foolish but terrible feud, the groundswell of the strife was still pronounced.

Dante was a Guelf, and at the battle of Campildino helped to break the power of the Ghibellines forever.

But the ancient hates survived, and the old parties, taking the names of the "Blacks" and the "Whites," kept up the fight.

A year or two after Dante became Prior the Blacks got the upper hand in Florence, and the leading Whites were banished, Dante among the rest.

Dante and fourteen others were declared outlaws, and were condemned to be burned alive if ever again they should come into the power of the republic.

When this fearful sentence was passed upon him Dante was nearing his fortieth year, and it seemed as if the star of the greatest man that Italy had ever produced, or was ever to produce, was about to be obscured forever!

Dante, wandering over Europe, with all of his earthly ambitions dashed, with love's young dream turned to ashes, and his great ambition hopelessly gone, began thinking of Eternity—of God, Heaven, Hell—and the final issues of the mysterious human life that we are living here upon this "bank and shoal of time."

Beaten in the world of politics, he would rise up into the realm of the Speculative Thought, into the region of poesy, and be a king whose throne none should be able to shake.

Great was the exile's success, and in the Temple of Fame there sit in the highest place, crowned, and glorious, the Four Greatest—Homer, Shakespeare, Cervantes, Dante.

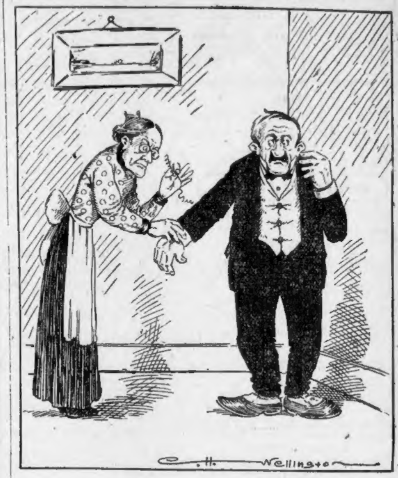
THERE'S A REASON



Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

MA dident have time to go down to Revere yesterday, as she promised, beekaus she is busy riteing the diary wich I am going to tell about tomorrow, so Pa & me went up to a big park, ware thay play golf. Pa had sum new sticks wich he had bought from a frend of his wich was gitting too fat to play golf, so he asked me to go along & be his caddie. I dident want to go, beekaus I wanted to go to Revere Beach with Ma instead, but Pa made me go.

Remember, Bobbie, sed Pa, this gaim of golf is one (1) wich you shud lern all about beekaus sum day you may be the president of the United States, & golf is the president's gaim. Mister Taft goes in for it vary exten-siv, sed Pa, his massiv strength & huge bulk en-abling him to brake moar clubs than the average golfer, so if the gaim is good enuff for Mister Taft to play, it ought to be a good enuff gaim for you to lern.

As I sed, Bobbie, you may perhaps be a president yurself one (1) day, altho yure father, with all his grand intelleck, will prubly nevver attain that distinc-tium, owing to his dark past.

Pa kep talking all the way to the grounds, telling me about the work of beeing a caddy & how I shud do it.

All you have to do is a snap, sed Pa. I have to hit the ball & hit it aggenn & aggenn, wile you have it vary soft, with no work excep to carry the clubs & chase after the ball wen it gits lost in a swamp.

& think of wat you will lern, Bobbie, watching me drive the ball into the South East Quarter of Seckshun 23, Pa sed. It is all a matter of the keen eye, this driving a golf ball or batting a base ball, sed Pa. It is this keen eye wich maks men like Mister Honnus Wagner and me the famus persuns wich we are.

Then we got to the park & Pa found the place ware thay start to play. Thare was a awful big crowd thare, but Pa sed to me wen we got close to the plais, Watch them all step aside & give me a chanst. Then Pa calm up to the plais ware thay put the littel ball, & sed Pardon me while I malk my drive.

Pardon us, sed sum of the men wich was standing thare, doant you know that this is a private lynx. Beesides, sed the men, a grate match is beeing played here to-day, & eeven if you were a member, wich you certainly do not seem to be, you wud have to stand aside & wait.

Nix on the kidding, sed Pa. I have been too long in the league to be made a monkey of, Pa sed. Let me interduce you to my littel son Bobbie, wich has braivly volunteered to be my caddy today, & then stand aside & let me malk my drive.

We are pleased to meet yure littel son, sed sum of the men, but thare will be nothing stirring for you in the golf line, unless you are strong enuff soshully to join our club, wich I dont. Now beat it, sed one of the men, or I will taik this mashie & mash yure upper lip.

Pa always toald me that he was a vary braiv man, so wen I watched him gitting white in the fais & then I saw him taik off his coat, I was afrade he was going to kill all them club members.

Then he gaiv me the clubs & sed Taik these clubs, Bobbie, & run as fast as you can. So I took the clubs & beegan to run & I dident dare to look back at first beekaus I hated to see Pa knocking them down, but after a wile I looked back & saw Pa running rite beehind me.

Pa toald me then that he had gaiv me the clubs to carry so he wuddent kill any of the men, but I think he gaiv me the clubs beekaus he cud run faster without them. Pa isent going to play golf any moar. He gaiv me the sticks. I sold them last nite.

A Famous Dispatch

By William Hoster

IT didn't happen so long ago that most folks cannot remember the criticism that was passed upon former President Roosevelt over the wording of a dispatch which was sent to the ruler of a South American Republic thanking him for the reception accorded to the world-girdling battle fleet.

"I thank you in behalf of my people," was the gist of the dispatch; and the exception was to the phrase "my people."

It was observed that the phrase was imperialistic — that Roosevelt was assuming the manners of an emperor, etc.

For nine days the changes were rung on it. While the excitement was at its height Roosevelt bustled into the executive offices one day, and exclaimed.

"What is this dispatch they are criticising — this thing about 'my people?' I don't recall having written any such dispatch. What does it all mean?"

An investigation was made. In the interests of history, it is as well to set down the result of that investigation. Roosevelt never wrote the dispatch. He didn't even know that it was being sent, or had been sent. The State Department did it.

A dispatch from the ruler of the South American Republic having been received, it was necessary to reply to it. Whereupon some under secretary, to save the President trouble, sat down and wrote the famous message, "my people" and all, signed Roosevelt's name to it, and off it went.

To this day the truth about the dispatch has been one of the State secrets.

A Guide for Hunters

By WEX JONES

HOWEVER experienced a hunter may be, there are a few simple rules which he will find invaluable when trying to persuade African fauna to become inmates of a glass case in a museum.

A cardinal rule is to have all rides painted bright pink. This may cause a little difficulty in aiming when the sun is bright, but will prevent the loss of many a costly weapon. Pink is a color that is very easy to see in the jungle, so when the hunter throws his rifle away for the sake of making better time to the nearest tree, it can be more readily recovered by the natives.

The tsetse fly is a large buzzy insect, the bite of which brings on prolonged sleep. To prevent being sent to sleep at inconvenient moments, bring along a box of common house flies. Immediately on feeling a tsetse bite, release one of the American flies and it will buzz in one ear and tickle your nose so vigorously that sleep will be impossible. Burbank is now engaged in developing a mild breed of tsetse fly, in the hope that it may prove practicable for domestic use. By chaining one in the baby's crib, it will be possible to keep the child asleep as long as may be required.

Considerable firmness must be exercised in dealing with the native beaters. Some of them are arrant cowards and exhibit the utmost reluctance in going into the jungle after lions. A good rhinoceros hide whip will be found an excellent argument to use in showing such beaters where their duty lies. As the beaters drive the game through the grass the hunters waits at a convenient spot and shoots as soon as the quarry appears. If the second shot fails to kill the lion, it is customary to apply the absent treatment, which is best given with the aid of a pony, which helps one to be absent more quickly. Should the lion turn upon the beaters, do not be alarmed. Africa simply swarms with beaters.

To insure a good bag of lions, ground bait is necessary. The country should be dotted with dead springboks, liberally treated with opium. The lions will eat the springboks and will feel too sleepy to travel far away. In this case it will be necessary to tie a firecracker to the lion with the object of arousing him as the guest comes along.

In avoiding the charge of a rhinoceros by climbing a tree, great care should be taken not to pick out a tree up which a leopard has already climbed.

There are other rules, but the hunter, if he lets the beaters do most of the interviewing, will soon learn them for himself.
